The most comic, and at the same time tragic, thing that I saw during the examination period was a Freshman who had "any "thoughts" for the daily journal column. "Any thoughts," he hand in the day of the English I examination. I saw it was not the only member of his class with a "thought" for the "thoughts" column; it is, in fact, unfair on the part of the English department to expect a freshman, for that matter a Freshman—to have a thought. "Any thoughts" would require them in their eleven hour scramble for "thoughts," must have undergone a veritable brain drain.

"Connecticut to get Chapman!" reads the glaring eight-column headline across the front page of a local paper. I expected to see: "Hooray, Hooray. We'll have another Hang-up on the line. You know how mean little pups will yippe and snarl at a big dog when they see him safely chained up to a post. It strikes me that the attitude of the Connecticut Yanks who take glea in the hanging of the innocent robberies, one of them a brilliant young man, is the same gusto we once devoured the Boy Scouts. . . . But I shall be suspected of promoting this sort of argument.

JUNIOR PROMENADE IS BEST IN YEARS

Climax of Winter Social Season Largely Attended

Monday at 9:30 p.m., the college social season and Junior Week came to a close with dances by the fraternities of Delta Kappa Epsilon, Delta Phi, and Psi Gamma. Captain Hack opened in Alumni Hall with the January Moon, a show of the greatest imagination and ingenuity. The dance which followed in the larger hall was a brilliant one, and the final dance is to be held on Yank night by the speedy "Jim" Kenney who looked like the proverbial million-dollar "Tommie". Thompson in his first "variety" game did very well. Ousted using his entire team in the last ten minutes of the game.

The newly elected president of the Student body made a young inaugural address on the subject of "The American University in the Future". He was heard with the greatest interest and applaud.

TRINITY ENGINEERS MEET IN YANKS)

Blue and Gold Presents Smooth Working Quintet

The Trinity College basketball team completely outclassed the Lowell Tech team Saturday night. The game was very shuggingly played both by teams, and at half time we were leading 14 to 12. The nature of the game was the defense thrown up by Coach Owings men. The Tech team was unable to make any use of the advantages of playing on the Smith. Captain Kenney of the Tech team was forced to leave the game by way of the personal foul route.

ETHOICS.

At a recent meeting of the college society, a new president was elected to take the place of the one who left college.

Possibly that recent election will break up the two remarkable political machines that have been functioning for the past five years.

The noble pils in the past two years. These political wars have done more harm to the college than everything else put together. Perhaps it might be well to make this a co-ed institution, and have the girls clean house.

HAMILTON DEFEATS TRINITY, 31 TO 26

New York Quietly Secures Lead in the First Half

In a fast and at times rather exciting game, Hamilton secured the lead in the opening half. The game was a little more even than usual, with Hamilton leading two to one in the first five minutes. Trinity scored their first goal in the first five minutes of play, but (Continued on page 2.)

JESTERS SHINE IN MILNE PLAY

Give Excellent Performance of "The Dover Road"

The Jesters demonstrated again at the Hartford Club their ability to present a play in a pleasing and engaging manner. The piece was a light English comedy by A. A. Milne entitled "The Dover Road," and is the story of a middle aged man who devotes his life and fortune to preventing unhappy marriages and hasty,elope­ ments, by a corps of five excellently trained servants.

Merrill B. Sherman, who took prominent parts in both "The Willow Plait," and "Babb's Wildcat," the two Jester productions last year, headed the cast in "The Dover Road." He carried the part of the middle aged benefactor in a creditable and the result of his previous training was plainly evident. Winthrop B. Segar and Winston S. Flies, both members of the previous Jester company, played the parts of one of the eloping couples. Segar is very good in handling a feminine part and Flies is excellent in character work. An excellent couple who are running away also come into the action of the play.

part. The Jesters have a capable cast of performers, and with three more years at Trinity, we shall expect to see some really excellent work from such a group of experienced players.
In the last number of the TRIPOD the problem of Freshman casualties was discussed, but no one was attached to it so "bear investigation" has prompted Professor Perkins to write a letter which is printed below.

To the Editor of the TRIPOD:

Dear Sir:

Even the College Professor may be asked to explain the amount of effort, either of his own or of his teacher's, that goes into a course. He does not belong in college the sooner he finds out the better both for his students and for himself. The boy there is the who comes inadequately prepared. There is hope for him in college, but he must work hard in spite of undergraduate disapproval of the grade. Third, there are the honors students and freshmen with whom the Freshman is urged to take part, and for whom we must make it easy for him to carry on his studies. Fourth, there are the students who are working their way through college and must get a chance to learn something without a very high degree of effort. Thus the whole of this possibility at an increased cost.

First, there is the ever present problem of the proportion of students to facilities, and the amount of effort, either of his own or of his teacher's, that goes into a course. TRIUMPH DEFEATED.

Hamilton soon evened things up on successive baskets by Rowley, Hatch, and Jacoblin.
After the score seesawed back and forth, Trinity held the lead only a moment.
In the final few minutes of the first half, Rowley of the visitors cut successive baskets for his team from beyond the middle of the floor. This period ended with Hamilton in the lead.

The second half was very much faster than the first, both teams continually fighting for possession of the ball. Hamilton had the advantage in men, and was very much stronger in this period and made ten points before the half had progressed eight minutes. It seemed to be a question of how long the advantage could be kept.

It was the fast outside work of Orrick, who had been held scoreless up to this time, that scored column with two pretty field goals. The Blue and Gold rally was short, and the game ended with Trinity still six points in the rear.

The score: Hamilton, 48; F. P. Rowley, 2; Marguaud, 3; Hatch, (capt.), 4; 27; Rowley, 6; Hatch, (capt.), 4; Total, 12; 6; Trinity, 48; F. P. Riley, 3; Newhouse, (capt.), 6; Wilcox, 6; Orrick, (capt.), 2; Total, 12; 7; Referee, Dillon.}

Conditions there are worse than they Are. Here, that was the cause for much Chorling and comedy on the part of the heroes, there, a great deal. Went up. No, me, ladies, "Siam" Wilson. It's not being you, because I happen to be the person who told him that. Ye apare went to two other places of the collegiate rank. Both of them had good football teams. But would I leave here and go back? It may be somebody else. But somebody else other than me also.

A letter was received last December by an undergraduate, from a friend of his, who was an undergraduate here last year. Was all that it might be. He went elsewhere to college last fall. This letter said, "Before you start to grab trinity, go somewhere else first, and then you won't have so much to grab about." That is just about right.

'Cause I'm getting a lot. Anywhere else you do not know what they are talking about. And it's hard to tell. Crabbers think they are poor, but they aren't. They don't have the right to say, "You can't do this and you can't do that." It's not as bad as it looks.

The semi-anual eclipse At Trinity, dead. At Nine a. M., January twenty-first and reached totality on Trinity Island. Unfortunately no certain dates were included in the shadow and the basketball squad has suffered in consequence. No, it is not as bad as it seems.

see Walpole's "Castle of Otranto"—and ever reigns an arched-friend with all the deviltry of Count Cenci, Professor Moriarty, Pagin, Simon Legree and Scissorgill rolled into one. You should meet Count Dracula.

A few days ago I received from "Dracula" a work, a chapter raised "Books for Children," in an English professor's book, "What Books Can Do for You." Hopeful signs among the pedagogues! **

The author of "What Books Can Do For You" had the right idea.

Boys—real, imaginative boys—sick of the "Little Men"—Dick

Rover Horatio Alger type of thing. The stifled, virtuous Polynya boys, too, even to ring door bells on Halloween, nauseates him. I remember only a little more than a decade ago swapping with the boys of the block, Alexander Dumas 'Celebrated Crimes of History' for Edgar Allen Poe's "Tales of Mystery and Horror," and Conan Doyle's "Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" for Robert Louis Stevenson's "De Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

I shall never forget the loathing we had for the book agent who came to our street trying to sell fairy story books with the "horrible suggestions" of fear, brutality and violence. Imagine Jack of Bead Black fame turning the other cheek to the Giant, or All Baba and his sons Thieves conducting a quiet little Persian Bag business? **

This anti-harmful suggestion complex has developed to its most ludicrous extreme in that dear old Puritan cild, Boston. There, I am told, the Watch and Ward Society whose sole duty on this puny planet is to suppress the innate vice of their brethren has absolutely forbidden the selling of certain books by James Branch Cabell, James Joyce, Thodore Dreiser, Sherwood Anderson, Ben Hecht, Abhous Hearley, Elia Kazan, and a host of others. Modern. A Harvard undergraduate tells me that a Cambridge student must present a certificate signed by President Lowell, Mayor Curley and the president of the Watch and Ward Society before he can see as much as look at the cover of an unmarked "unreadable," "unreadable" Tales, Poe's "Descarnor," Shakespear's "Venus and Adonis," Rabhalah's "Gargantua," the first twelve days of Gaultier's "Mademoiselle de Maupin." He was not certain how they dealt with the "Old Testament."

Probably no chapter in the history of English literature has caused more demuretory waving of arms among the professional reformers than the restoration period. Of the voices which have endured for their large humanity and understanding, however, we hear Charles Lamb calling the Restoration Players delectable "fairyland" into which the reader weary of the petty preoccupations of mundane morality, can find refreshing repose, and we hear William Thackeray calling them a "Pagan protest" in which "Life puts in its pie and sings its expiation." **

Advocates of the forgoing about these books is this statement from Oscar Wilde's artistic creed: 'There is no such thing as a moral or an immoral book. Books are well written, or badly written. That is all.' G. M.-S.

COLLEGE NEWS.
Professor Scott of the History department has resigned after a brief sojourn at Trinity. There are a great many rumors about college as to the reason for the resignation, the plain plausible being that he played with dollars and took a toodly bear to bed with him. However, Mr. Leake, his cell mate, disapproved this. Another promising explanation is that Mr. Scott deserted the President because he liazed, carried a cane, and came from California, which is near Hollywood and the dens of iniquity.

Mr. Owting collapsed in front of the women's dormitory while at the list of casualties posted upon the President's Bulletin. He bore a message of sorrow to our coach and to us, because it contained the names of many of our athletes and potential athletes, and as such, is an agent of sorrow. Mr. Owting is going to get a vacation for over-cutting. He fell down on the ice and while he was deciding whether to get up or call for help he fell asleep and missed his classes. **
