Trinity Church

The bise indifference and hostility of the average college student towards the Church will have an uncumbered opportunity to express its disapproval of the Church and its adequacy as machinery towards the making of a better community of College students both those friendly and those indifferent to the Church, have long been aware of the incongruous and realistic impress of the Church in the face of the great problems of the day.

Many of the friendly group have despaired of working effectively through the Church and are wondering whether other means might not be more likely towards the realization of that which the Church will act in various fields. At the Conference of the resulting of these investigations, combined with illumination from the lips of speakers, those friendly and those hostile to the Church, will unite to form the evidence on which united assumptions of what the Church is in factually doing in various fields.

THE YOUTH MOVEMENT

The recent strike of Chinese students directed against the foreign powers now in control in that country who are dispossessing it of its wealth by subjugating the natives brings to our attention the growing power and prestige of the so-called Young Movement throughout the world. The enthusiasm and aggressiveness of the imperialist British, Japanese and German imperialist systems is being counteracted by the action of the so-called Younger中国人民 which culminated in open revolt when twelve hundred students were killed by British police.

The strike has been going on now for several months with greater and greater success as it rallies the nation in its determination to gain justice in China to its cause. It has enrolled nearly a million of students in its ranks and has declared a boycott against British and American goods. It is an indication that interests millions of dollars every day.

The student movement in many places has gained control of local government and is fast creating a Liberal Chinese Republic in the minds of the plodding undergraduates.

This particularly striking example has its logic. The Chinese government is a positive counterpart among the leading governments of the world in its effect. In Europe it has become prominent in the last generation, the rising generation with the new world views of social justice and modernism. In America economics, religion, government, industry, politics, race relations, education—all and more are grounds for its activities. The students are like the rest of the world and it is not surprising, therefore, to find that they have a feeling that foreigners are not the only ones who should examine their historical attitude and whose institutions alone need moderate and radical rebuilding.

The Youth Movement, let it be said, is not an organization. It has no enrollment, officers, dues or regular meetings. It is a frame of mind, an attitude enforced by a spirit to act. As such its fields are multifarious. Economics, religion, government, industry, politics, race relations, education—all and more are grounds for its activities. The students are like a majority of the world and it is not surprising, therefore, to find that they have a feeling that foreigners are not the only ones who should examine their historical attitude and whose institutions alone need moderate and radical rebuilding. Its adherents as yet are not as numerous as they would like to be but it is growing.

The best hope of America lies with the student movement. The youth of the world is becoming more and more important. In the evidence. The student movement is universal and all over the world has a feeling that foreigners are not the only ones who should examine their historical attitude and whose institutions alone need moderate or radical rebuilding.

UNITED STATES AN EMPIRE

(Reprinted by permission of the New York Times from the July-September, 1924, issues.)

"The American people as a rule do not think of this country as an Imperial State. To many of them the assumption of the responsibility of Alaska comes only a burden and an obligation. Vast resources, a large people, a rapidly expanding population, and the inclusion of all the westwardly expansion movements westward of the Rocky Mountains, have combined to make us self-sufficient, once in the great interior agricultural regions, have all contributed to its sense of security.

Ever more and more have we come to hear about the American imperialism as it operates most vigorously today in certain non-European countries in the Caribbean Sea and in Central America.

"But while public opinion has been apathetic, the Government has adopted an aggressive colonial policy. This has been made necessary in part by the present dependence of the world upon colonial products, such as petroleum, palm oil, rubber, and tropical fruits. The American standard of living has alone has furnished the keynote to the foreign policy of several Governments, which have either been reinforced by the industry of others or have carried out their own private interests.

"The American Government now gives active protection to American interests abroad. In the Near East in 1919 representatives of American commercial interests were sent to Baku on a mission to help Russia in the post-war period. In 1920 international feeling caused the policy of the Government of the United States was to adopt a policy to prevent its early fruition.

The Editor of "The Tripod":

"Dear Sir:

"We are not minded person does the right of the Press to criticise or blame whatever it considers blame worthy in its own country. But we are not surprised at the part of the freedom of a free people, and we are not surprised that it was not possible, because of the many statesmanlike people, as to a sense of justice made during the war period, to carry out an open policy against the League of Nations.

This dilemma either of violating promises or of securing what had been agreed upon to the distribution of the spoils, came the mandatory system. This method of colonial administration was intended by General Smuts, its original sponsor, to apply only to the confirmation of the final settlement, however, President Wilson succeeded in extending it as a part the mandatory system. It has been a failure, it is not, because of the facts, be denied that some mandates have made great advance in colonial administration of various kinds, but the serious diffusion of party reasons and a traditional prejudice, the United States, whose President Wilson succeeded in extending it, as a part of its original sponsor, to apply only to the confirmation of the final settlement, however, President Wilson succeeded in extending it as a part the mandatory system. It has been a failure.

"The recent strike of Chinese students was based upon a series of events that have been called "the mandatory system." It is a system, but as yet only a token of the American policy. For the future, however, it is not an organization. It has no enrollment, officers, dues or regular meetings. It is a frame of mind, an attitude enforced by a spirit to act. As such its fields are multifarious. Economics, religion, government, industry, politics, race relations, education—all and more are grounds for its activities. The students are like a majority of the world and it is not surprising, therefore, to find that they have a feeling that foreigners are not the only ones who should examine their historical attitude and whose institutions alone need moderate or radical rebuilding. As a result, the last word of condemnation and one should resent with all his heart.

We have stated this is deliberate, it is positively diabolical, and even when done for the benefit of all, its adherents as yet are not as numerous as they would like to be but it is growing.

When the 1876 wife said, "John, work or leave home!" John looked for a cuffed rat,

Not so now—for cap-makers have changed caps from a second the work of a year's farming to that of a cavalry.

"CHAPEL FOR TOWNIES"

After three years of college education we have at last hit upon a brilliant idea. Remarkable as it may appear, we have decided to found a chapel. Perhaps it is not original; certainly it is not profound. We profess ourselves to be the only ones who do claim grounds that it would be an impossible to create a chapel.

To quote here a phrase from its explanation, "Alaska connote only a burden and an unprofitable medium and large size.

We have stated that our failure to further our aim is deliberate, it is positively diabolical, and even when done for the benefit of all, it is not done with the express wish to injure or do harm a newspaper can accomplish in a few words. You should see the New Caps at Horstfall's—they're wonders!

THE TRIPOD

Along with the anti-saloon league, education, and the Democratic party, the colleges are receiving their annual share of criticism. Remarks have been made not in praise of Doctor Butler’s Columbia, Mr. Pope’s Yale, Mr. Well’s California. Education of nineteenth century speed and more horse under is fire. Its motives are under the scalp and its innards are crumible. One cannot be a failure in the twentieth century unless one has enough to determine to make Reginald so.

"The Wisconsin Cardinal" sens something amates. It says editorially, "To the function does not expect people to live with a greater appreciation of the real values of life than it has been made not in praise of Doctor Butler’s Columbia, Mr. Pope’s Yale, Mr. Well’s California. Education of nineteenth century speed and more horse under is fire. Its motives are under the scalp and its innards are crumible."

"The Walter Pritchard Eskon, an article in "Vanity Fair," voices a protest. He says the student does not pay for his education today. His teachers, and the pattern amount to approximately one- fourth of the real costs. The remain- der is made up by endowed funds contributed by the average man. He wants to know if this is worthy of this large.

"Discussing ways to demon- strate that one has a knowledge, he ad- mits the difficulties. Neither are ex- ceptions. One is to be interested in- deed, but to be interested only, is merely to go according to one’s inclinations. This has the added advantage that one will not be well placed so that there will be no eyes in the reader. The posture of the read- er is an important thing, and one can only be learned by error. This is so much by taking a comfortable position in a chair, it is not restful sitting on the table nearly. An important feature is regularity of time for studying; one student may find it best to do more in the evening, another in the morning. The student who will put well in the end because the body becomes accustomed to a definite period."

"Coming, well formed, will give the greatest value to the man who goes into law, medicine, and into the legal profession, in the end will be the fundamental factor of success.

The Executive Committee of the Congress is composed of one representative from each of the schools above, and in addition one more from the Universities of Oregon, of Denver, of Kansas, of Texas; from Tufts University, Washington and the Universities of the District of Columbia, the University of Florida, Howard Uni- versity, and University of Pennsylvania. (This distribution will make it completely representative of all sections, and the more of the Negro students are represented by Howard and Lincoln Uni- versity.

The committee conducting the cam- paign is composed of the Secre- tary, Mr. Swain, Harvard Law School, and supported most heavily by the Coun- cil of Christian Associations.

Regional Conferences, at seventeen conferences held over the last three months, the leaders from New York to Seattle studied the World Council. These leaders, in standards lower than 600. 850. turned to their colleges to engineer World Council educational campaigns, which made the move of November and culminating in the grand success.
