THE READING COURSE AND TRINITY LIBRARY

The Reading Course was started in 1925. At that time a large pamphlet was gotten out giving a list of books which were recommended as worth reading, and a supplement was added during the last year. This year the Professor Costello, though embodying suggestions by several members of the staff, has decided that the new edition of the printed guide will supersede all previous ones. During the present year an effort has been made to bring together inclusion books all or most of the books recommended. This work is now practically completed for those students who have been on the reading course in the fall, and are likely to stay the course up to the end of the year.

All the Reading Course books are marked with a round full-moon sticker, and the cards in the catalogue are marked RC.

PERKINS TO LECTURE ON ATOMS.

Professor Henry A. Perkins, head of the Physics Department, will give a lecture next Monday night at 7 o'clock at the request of the student body to be present. Professor Perkins has been anxious for the class in Latin III to have the opportunity of hearing this lecture because of “Lavoisier’s” treatment of the subject in his “De Rerum Naturae,” which class is reading this year.

SUMMARY OF COURSES TO BE OFFERED

Principally Will Be Issued May 27.

“Tried” hopes to publish, through the co-operation of various departments, a summary of the courses to be offered in the issue for Friday, May 27.

It is the opinion of the “Tried” that the Elliot Fund, which has provided a valuable help can be given the students in this way that it will also enable the college to carry on throughout the year, its valuable work of courses and to clear up any obscure points about them.

To the Editor of “The Tripod”:

As a member of the faculty, I must state the part of an innocent onlooker, to ask why there has been no published account of the Senior Class of Trinity College.

Of course the writer realizes that the funds are in capable hands, and that those who seek after such matters are above reproach, but figuratively one cannot understand. Moreover, since assessments are being collected on the college bill from all the students, it is only fair that all should have some idea of where the money is going.

ALUMNI NEWS

Word has been received that Robert F. Fleming, of the Class of 1925, has opened a business office and general store on the most coveted American Field Service Fellowships. Those fellowships, awarded only to distinguished medical students, permit those receiving them to study medicine under the most famous European professors. Fleming plans to work next year under the tutelage of the distinguished Russian physiologist and chemist, Ivan Petrovich Pavlov. His ultimate field is that of experimental embryology, and this book is very interesting in his native tongue.

Some students, for instance, try the method of “presenting” for themselves. They find they are hopelessly behind in their doings. The author knows of a onetime member of the Delta Theta fraternity who, when asked to present a paper in his section of the Phi Kappa Theta chapter at Alpha Delta Phi, said: “I can’t present a paper.”

Harry Daniel Green, of the Class of 1887, was given the annual operation at the North East Baptist Hospital, in Boston, Massachusetts, on January 8.

Henry R. Thompson, of the Class of 1887, died on Saturday, March 20, at Millinocket, Me. Mr. Thompson was a prominent citizen of the town for many years a practicing attorney in that community, living East about twenty years ago. He married Ellen Eliot of Wiscasset, Me., and was a son of Rev. Martin Van B. Clark of Kennebunk, Me., who died two years ago. He leaves a wife, and a daughter, Sara Elizabeth Thompson of Wiscasset, Maine. Mr. Thompson was a member of the Epiphon Chapter of Delta Psi.

Where most students seem to face or be misled, by the independence offered in the field of the course, some students, for instance, try the course, but put off their reading till a more convenient time. If we put up their daily assignments in their more rigid courses, until finally they find that the books have become a constant companion. The idea is not to wander on to the next village.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NEWS

American colleges seem to have been suffering from a mania for collecting statistics in the past few months concerning everything from the number of co-eds engaged or married to the number of students that believe in God. A slightly different questionnaire has been submitted to Trinity men by the University, which has brought forth many interesting results. For example, Yale seniors selected Harvard as the next best college, while Smith and Vassar are considered the best women's colleges. Prohibition was voted down by a majority of more than four to one. Asinela Kappa was determined to be more highly prized than a major "Y." The Episcopal Church recognizes first in student affiliation, and psychology was voted the least valuable of all courses. Slight differences occurred in the answers to the poll at Fairfield. The science men voted Princeton, Yale and then Smith the best college for men. Both colleges agree that Missolino is the most interesting woman college figure today. In a major "Y" preferred to membership in Sigma Phi.

While we are in the questionnaire mood perhaps we can work up some interest in the Boston University professor's reasons why professors gray. Many, he stated do not stop at grayness but continue through whiteness and perhaps to baldness because of:

The dairy which he wants his mark lifted so that he can get off probation.

Alone who wrote it all out and forgot to bring it to class.

The janitor.

The Trust co-owed with the Mouskouri.

The slow motion sprinter who always arrives late to class.

The sunbeam who calls the great educator "Prof."

The rubber backed goof who reads everything on the office desk.

The observant student who listens in on telephone conversations.

All this is good filler but our conscience is beginning to hurt with reminders of our duty to our public and our country. We want you to fill in the blanks which short of our contracted column is required above copyright for student consumption.

Not content with the Yale and Princeton combinations it attracts, Smith College has sent a proposal to Amherst. It is stated that the reason this is to be done is to satisfy the need of the male part college in Amherst for a theatrical production. One paper has stated that this proposal should increase the number of tryouts for leading parts in this proposal should increase the number of play production for leading parts in the college.

The Stratford Opera House will be part of the winter in addition to the drama festival at Stratford. Plans for rebuilding necessarily have been suffering from a mania for rebuilding, due to the fire of the old opera house. The old opera house was saved from the flames, but vast portions of the opera house were consumed.

The Michigan college for two years past had returned to Harvard for his doctor's degree, afterwards returning to Calaspan as assistant professor of history.

The President's report on the commercial development of the south during the colonial period will be Professor Semmes' special field. He is to teach the course, devoting the rest of his time to research.

Trinity College

"He was a happy combination of the amiable and intense. His habit of absorption became a byword; for if he visited a country and soured a book which interested him, instead of going to the talk, he would study the book, oblivious of everything else, until the college bell rang for the next lecture, when he would jump up with a start, and dash off. The quiet but firm teaching of the college, the quiet, but firm teaching of the college, the quiet, but firm teaching of the college, the quiet, but firm teaching of the college.

Juniors Win Interclass Track Meet

Condit Breaks Record for Discus

The Junior Class of Trinity College easily captured the annual interclass track meet last Friday afternoon, the final standing being: Juniors, 70; Seniors, 89; Sophomores, 23, and Freshmen, 17.

In several events the time was very slow due to the fact that the majority of the men entered several events and tried to save their strength. Even “Bill” Dower were the high individual scorers of the afternoon. Both scored a total of thirteen points. Even won firsts in the shot and the javelin, and a second in the discuss. Dower was second in the high and low hurdles, and century and third in the high jump and 220.

A shield has been presented which will bear the names of the winning teams from year to year. The name of the individual high scorer is also to be engraved upon it.

“Rob” Condit threw the discus a distance of 111 feet, 5 inches, breaking the college record of 108 feet, 10 inches. This record will not be recognized, however, as it was not made in a dual or intercollegiate meet.

CONSTANCE TOWNE DANCERS paper the School's Record in the Greek Dance

The Constance Towne Dancers, America's foremost exponents of the Greek Dance, will appear in a Recital at Trinity College on Monday evening, May 16. The recital will be given at Unit J Hall under the patronage of a number of Hartford residents who have taken an interest in presenting the group in this city.

Announced as "a recital of classical music interpreted by pantomime and motion in dance form," the group will interpret works of Chopin, Schubert, Grieg, Moszkowski, Beethoven, Strauss and other composers. The pianist will be Robert Armbroster, the young American composer and concert artist.

The Constance Towne dancers are unique in the field of art in many respects, chief of which is probably the fact that they are the only American company adhering entirely to the classical Greek school of the dance. Notwithstanding the youth of the eight girls who make up the group,—the oldest is nineteen—they are the oldest in America in this respect that they have maintained themselves intact as a group with no change in personnel since their organization ten years ago.

In 1917 determined to train and present the most finished and artistic company of dancers possible, Constance Towne chose from several hundred applicants forty girls ranging in ages from seven to nine. Her only requirement was that they show promise of ability. She undertook the entire artistic education of these girls, gave them instruction in music, physical training and the dance. For ten years their routine has not varied; they have danced together every day for ten years. As the years passed the group inevitably thinned in number of course until today eight finished solo dancers remain of the original forty-five, which Mrs. Towne considers a highly successful average.

Last winter when Constance Towne felt she was ready to show the results of her ten years of labor New York's unanimous comment was: "Such artistry with such youth would be unbelievable if we had not seen it." For, with the single exception of the Towne dancers the finished dancer has always been a middle-aged woman, an artist, but lacking the beauty and virility of youth.

The recital in Hartford is one of four which will be given by the Towne dancers in New England before their departure for a European tour in July.
