Elaborate Program is Prepared for Club Meeting to Be Held Up To Start on Friday morning.

The date of the week-end has been set for May 2, and a program for Friday and Saturday has been arranged. Arrangements have been made for caring for these prospective freshmen coming from out of town at the various fraternity houses.

The committee in charge, announces the following program:

Saturday, May 2, prospective freshmen will meet at 3 o'clock in the chapel to the baseball game between Trinity and Yale.

A program has been arranged in Alumni Hall for both college men and their friends.

The members of the committee in charge of the meeting are James E. Allen, Professor of English; John H. Martin; Martin; Pei; Arnold; Abraham; Chi Epo; Wright; St. Anthony; Fung; Alpha Delta Phi; Dill; Coles, D. K. E.; Carlton;

On Friday night, April 17, at 8:15, Professor W. A. Young of Alcorn College, Dublin, gave a lecture in Alumni Hall on "Spain in the Eighteenth Century," and last Saturday on "Gypsies," illustrated his lecture by playing an old violin on his violin. Last June he was here at Commencement and received the memory degree of Doctor of Letters. At the regular meeting of the Varsity Club on Saturday, May 1, the Trowbridge Memorial will be open for an hour after the close of the committee meeting each of which may be either to swim or to play squash.

At the close of the meeting, the committee will get under way the plans for debating in the society, next season.
CRITICISM AND THE COLLEGE STUDENT

The purpose of any school of higher education is among other things to encourage the student to look with a questioning eye at all phases of contemporary thought and problems. A constructive virile criticism should play a vital part in the life of the American college student. And, indeed, it is mainly through such criticism that the student shall enlarge his intellectual vision; for he will gain an alertness in detecting flaws and in accepting truths. The liberal student is scarcely partisan and he will take pains not only to question conservative leaders that he may understand what is fallacious and what is sound, but he will venture to place rationalism on trial. The Socratic method is not entirely valueless. Now it must be conceded that the student we have observed is a myth in the American college; for the number of such students is so small that he is lost sight of in the numerical domination of the average student. The average American college student is fairly well off, studies just enough to pass his courses, and for the most part is content not to engage in intellectual conversations; nor does he seriously question even the most doubtful ideas advanced by the authors of his textbooks. He does not take any pains to make himself self-conscious by questioning the traditions, institutions, beliefs, that are so cherished and not occasionally without substantial foundation. Even if he should make speculations (perhaps there is many a student who does), even if he should find that he was accepting things too much for granted, he would scarcely have the courage to make expression of his new convictions. The average college student knows that it is far less strenuous to devote most of his time to talking about sports and parties, and he is fond of hearing and telling jokes. In this class of the average college student we can place a good number of what are called "brilliant" students; for not a few "brilliant" students lack the questioning zeal and mental alertness of their brothers who have not had the pleasure of being termed "brilliant." With remarkable complacency they accept the word of the professor and the textbook.

But what of the few critical students that are to be found in every American college? What is the attitude of other students toward them? The student who questions (we mean the intelligent and discreet student), is perhaps the most unpopular man in college. He is avoided by his classmates as a bore, and he has no easy task in getting along with them. Sometimes it is because he attacks their pet ideas or traditions or whatnots; more often, however, he is unpopular for a purely unfounded reason. Before him, indeed, it is no pleasure for them to have to contend with one so mentally alert and active, whose intellectual vision extends beyond classroom knowledge to a practical world. We think we are justified in saying that there is a vital need in the American college for a speculative and critical attitude on the part of students.

Letter Received from Dr. E. L. Seas Who is Traveling in Europe

To the Editor of the "Triad":

I was in hopes you might get space in "The Triad" to publish the splendid piece of mission on missions in the Orient by Professor Perkins. It attracted a great deal of attention and was published in full in one of the leading Sunday papers here. I was more interested than the ordinary person because I have been in the Orient and observe conditions there. His estimate of the worth of Christian missions of all branches of the Church—Anglican, Protestant and Roman Catholic—is in almost kinder language. While all Church people should have at their tongue's end all the information which holds in a most convenient form which might well be memorized, section by section, for ready quotation when any of the questions are raised.

I am in receipt of a letter from Dr. Skau. His friends will be interested in the fact that he has written this piece of mission in his article which holds in a most convenient form which might well be memorized, section by section, for ready quotation when any of the questions are raised.

"My Polygon" Rehearses Sunday Afternoon—Jesters May Give Dance

The cast of "The Polygon" held its first rehearsal since the Easter vacation on Sunday afternoon in the English room. The rehearsal was under the direction of Mr. Jay Ray who has taken Mr. Byers' place as director of the new Jester. It has been sufficiently transferred to Boston. Mr. Ray is assistant director of Trinity's drama department and is presenting a series of plays in Hartford at this time. The new director has succeeded in arousing enthusiasm among the members of the cast. Although the cast is not complete and the new cast members have been in the part of the letter which I call:

1. To February 1 in Munich, and since that date I have been in Frankfurt, Graz and Vienna; since my return to February 1 in Munich, and since that date I have been in Frankfurt, Graz and Vienna; since my return to

NORMAN CLOUTIER TO PLAY FOR SENIOR BOWL

Catering and Decorations Have Been Arranged—Student Support Asked For

On Thursday, April 16, Lauriston L. Soulel, chairman of the Senior Bowl committee, announced that the seniors of the Class of 1931, Mr. Cloutier and his orchestra have been engaged for the coming dance. Chairman Soulel also said that the entertainment would be in the hands of Walker and the decorations by Simmons.

In order to make this dance a success, the Senior Class needs the combined cooperation of the whole college body. The admission is but $5 a couple and $3 for individuals. Surely the Seniors deserve our support in the carrying out of their last social affair, and so let's give it to them and make the week-end of May 16 memorable one.

PROFESSOR STARKIE SPEAKS ON "Anne of Cleves" nelle and Racine were produced and copied. The opera, "Corinne" is French, for there are only two times in it that are Spanish, and these were taken from the set of staged of the act. The art of stage setting was sympathetically understood by many of many candles produced a weird and beautiful effect that is not attained today by the use of colored lights. Another type of theatre was begun in Spain in the nineteenth century for which the characters were taken from the streets and represented the life of the street. The opera was produced short, one-act plays, and during each play the characters changed in the Spanish fashion to Spanish folk music. Professor Starkie's Internation slides were shown by a short history of Goya, an eighteenth century Spanish artist, who portrayed the people of the lower-class of his day. Other slides illustrated Moorish art and the various types of scenery used in the theatre of the time. Professor Starkie also played several selections of Spanish folk-music on his violin, accompanied by the piano by Mr. Merrill of Trinity.

Singles Championship. He performed the best in 1884, just one year after the first modern lawn tennis tournament, at Trinity College in 1883.

Contrary to a previous announcement, the trials for the Interfraternity tennis meet will be held on Monday, May 25, and the finals will be held on Wednesday, May 27. Dr. Edward L. Rappson, former Trinity track captain and member of the class of 1901, has donated the cup which will be awarded to the winner of the meet.

The schedule for the opening rounds of the tennis matches is as follows:

Alfa Phi Delta vs. Blues, April 27, 4 to 6 p.m.
Phi Upsilon vs. Delta Phi, April 30, 6 to 8 p.m.
Alfa Chi Rho vs. Alpha Kappa Epsilon, April 26, 4 to 6 p.m.
Gold vs. Sigma Nu, April 23, 6 to 8 p.m.
Phi Rho vs. Delta Kappa Epsilon, April 27, 4 to 6 p.m.

words and music. Mr. Merrill offered a prize of $5 to the winner of the contest and the Glee Club voted a second prize of $8. This concert will close this term.

Today in the Public Speaking room between 2 and 5 o'clock the Glee Club is going to hold tryouts for new members. The purpose of these trials is to acquaint new men with the songs the club this year that so next year the club may start in with plenty of experienced material.

Mr. Merrill then announced that the club was preparing to present several evening concerts on the campus this spring. One of these will be held on Soph-freshman week-end, May 2, and another on Senior week-end, May 16. It was decided that for the remainder of the college year only one rehearsal a week would be held, this one coming Thursday evening on May 16.

won his event, and Benjamin has shown strength in this event. They will be closely pressed by several candidates, and this fact plus the excellent pitching and hitting ability which the Blue and Gold showed against the Blue and Gold makes us almost confident of a win.

In the high jump, Anderson, who was unable to win the last class meet without a great deal of difficulty, and Dost, should be able to hold their own. Both men have made around five feet nine inches in competition.

In the pole vault Higgins and Rowland are both veterans and with competition are expected to develop strength in this event. They will be closely pressed by several candidates who are not doing badly in practice.

The first meet will be held in Amherst on Thursday, May 27, and the last has been practicing during the winter in their own Midfield house.

BASEBALL TEAM PLAYS LOWELL TECH TERROR.

This infield will be weakened considerably by the ineligibility of Alboni, who has shown great promise of making good at the shortstop position. He failed to matriculate after Easter, but may do so later.

In the first game, Coach Wright has cut the squad down to a compact group of about twenty-five men. All the players have been put through batting and fielding practice on the field, and practice games have been engaged in.

Unless unforeseen conditions arise, the following men will probably make up the team in the opening game with Low-ell Tech: Bell will hold the regular position, with Bean, who is a shortstop and Houlihan will take care of the hurling. Casy or Fritzen will play at first, Gooding will cover around second, Coleman will shine at short, while Joe Fontana will take care of any eventualities that may crop up at third. In the outfield, Hill are probably to hold their positions, and these boys will be strengthened by center field, and either Keating or Vignati will play at right field.

On Saturday, the double game with the Aggie nine will be played. The Blue and Gold will have to play the Connecticut Aggie nine this week, and the game will be played on the campus in the afternoon.

The Varsity nine easily defeated The Drinkers nine easily defeated The Drinkers nine, April 23, 6 to 0. In a very good showing, it was a nine by the time the game was called off.

The first game will be held in Amherst on Thursday, May 27, and the last has been practicing during the winter in their own Midfield house.

Lowell Tech was badly beaten on Saturday by the Providence College nine, and this fact plus the excellent pitching and hitting ability which the Blue and Gold showed against the Aggie makes us almost confident of victory and at least of a tight game.
