Joe Fleming Stars

Captain Scores Six Basket—West Hartford Boys' Club Falls Before More Five.

Flashling a brilliant passing attack, the Blue and Gold, varsity basketball team, led by Captain Joe Fleming, who scored fifteen points, easily defeated the fast Clark University team. For the first five minutes Clark manifested the most powerful offense that has been seen on the Hopkins Memorial Stadium floor. Things looked decidedly bad for the team. However, the visiting team, after leading, scored a field goal on a play resulting from the first tap-off. The figures followed with Bowes and Bowes scored again on a field goal and a foul goal, giving Clark a 7 to 1 lead. Buckler was the first to score for Trinity. From then on the Blue and Gold's score remained steady until a basket by Galino sent the home team into the lead at 10 to 9. The game entered an even pace of scoring until almost the last one and one by Galino gave the home team a 20 to 15 advantage at halftime.

In the second half the Trinity offense was the strongest ever seen all season, and led by Joe Fleming, the team rolled up a 19 to 19. At this point Coach Ovington substituted some of his reserves. The entire team played better as a unit, continuing until the final whistle.

New Building Program Plans Announced

Extension of Williams Memorial Squash Play

In a closely fought engagement Saint Anthony Hall defeated Paul Upton last Tuesday in the finals of the Interfraternity Squash Racquets Tournament by the score of three matches to two. The winning of the tournament made Saint Anthony Hall the first fraternity to be awarded the Sidney T. Miller trophy. The Sigma Nu fraternity placed third in the tournament.

The remaining six windows for the Crypt Chapel have been completed and they will be set in place next week. These include: one given by the workmen, one given by the architect, and another presented by the class of 1928 in memory of Dr. Lull. The third has been presented by the family of Christopher Thurber, '05, for whom a memorial service was held last October in the College Chapel and another in memory of Rev. George Hewson Wilson, '93, who left the College, and the enlargement of the library and office space thus made possible.

The business department of the Trinity Tripod announces that competition for the executive offices of Business Manager, and Circulation Manager, opens for members of the Sophomore Class on February 10. All men desiring to compete at this time, must communicate with the Business Manager.

COUNCIL PROPOSES NEW RULES FOR RUSHING

System of Sealed Bids Planned to Supervise Pledging by Fraternities

At a meeting held in St. Anthony Hall last Tuesday night, the Interfraternity Council devised a plan for governing rushing activities next fall. The proposed form of this plan will be completed at the next meeting of the Council, and the following night it will be sent to the various fraternity houses on the campus. When the houses have separately voted upon it, the plan will be returned to the Council with the suggested amendments attached. When the Council and the fraternities have agreed upon a final plan, it will be put into effect immediately.

To the proposed plan, containing many of the rules of last year, many new rulings have been added. Unlike last year's, it includes a system of sealed bids, which shall be distributed by the Council at an assembly of freshmen on the last day of freshman week. Selected freshmen must have received one or rejected all of the bids offered them before leaving this college. This old orthodox belief received a version was accepted in its entirety by the freshmen and others who have been in the College before, the College, and the enlargement of the library and office space thus made possible.

The text of the lecture included that has been learned of the history of the whale, its physical features, and its habits in the sea, has associated with Professor Trueswell in this branch of study.

Prof. Lull Speaks in the College Chapel

Calls Evolution a Magnificent Process—Nothing in Nature Opposed to It

Students who attended last Wednesday's chapel had the pleasure of hearing Dr. Richard S. Lull, director of the Peabody Museum at Yale, speak on the topic, "A Scientist's Concept of Creation." Dr. Lull said that there were three theories of the creation: the direct creation theory, the experimental creation theory, and the potential creation theory. The best statement of the direct creation theory, according to Dr. Lull, is to be found in the first chapter of Genesis. The most modern teaching of the creation is admirably fitted for children, as it was written for a child's intellectual childhood. This version was accepted in its entirety by the Christian world, and is the result of the efforts of a Jesuit priest.

BASKETBALL TOURNEY TO BEGIN THIS WEEK

Peter Ogilvy Cup to be Awarded to Winner of Elimination Tourney

The basketball tournament starts this week, and is being looked forward to by all the boys with great anticipation. The college has entered a strong team, as well as the neutral body. Professor O'Connell, head of the Department of Physical Education, declares that there is more interest being shown in basketball this year than before, of this fact being found in the gymnasium, where various armies practice continually.

This year the tournament will be divided into two sections, one of these, the runner-up in the major tournament, will be awarded the ogilvy cup. The schedule for the first round is as follows:

At 4—Alpha Tau Kappa vs. Neutral Blues.
At 5—Sigma Nu vs. Anthony.
At 12—Alpha Delta Phi vs. Beta Kappa.
At 12.30—Neutral Golds vs. Delta Kappa Epsilon.
At 1—Phi Upsilon vs. Alpha Chi Rho.

COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIP SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Unlimited Cut List Increased and "Chihuahua" is Much Smaller

According to information given out by the college, the cut list of the college at mid-year this year is no lower than it was at this time last year, when it was considered that a large number of students had already dropped from the rolls. The number of students on the unlimited-cut list has increased. In February, 1930, there were 28 men on "unlimited-cut" list. This year, the number has increased to 25.

COMMUNICATIONS

To the Editor of THE TRIPOD,

Trinity College,

Hartford, Conn.

Dear Sir:

Elsewhere in this issue is an account of the inauguration of the new Schools Committee. I should like to add a few words in explanation of the line I have taken here, for it would be unfair to this Committee.

There has been at Trinity for a great many years no organised effort of any kind to foster interest in the College among desirable sub-freshmen. Sporadic efforts have been made by individual Alumni and by fraternities to awaken and grow Alumni interest, but it is only in the past few years an unofficial Inter-Fraternity Alumni Committee met in New York and stirred up quite an agitation. Aside from memorialising the Trustees on several matters this Committee came to the unanimous conclusion that the question of professional representation should be approached from the common ground of Trinity's welfare, that even the most selfish considerations indicated the positive necessity of acting together for the good of the college. In the main-time President Ogilby has done what he ever personally could for the sub-freshmen in college and Dean Hood has tackled the problem with characteristic vigor. But the job is primarily one for Alumni administration, and with that in mind the Executive Committee of the Alumni Association has appointed the Schools Committee to consider and to recommend to the College, if he possible, steps which all phases of the question concern and to do so for the best type of student.

We are fortunate at the present time in having the advantage of an awakened and growing Alumni in-

BOOK REVIEW

THY ROV AND THY CREEL, by Odell Shepard. Published by Edwin Valentine Mitchell. $2.00.

For that unfortunately large percent-age of people who care for noth-ing in a book save its name, cover, and author, Professor Shepard's essay is a valuable acquisition. The cover is handsome, the name fascinating, and the author well-known. And yet the book, while not filled with any novel or musing quality, is so written as to impress the reader with a keen desire to read it again.

"Thy Rod and Thy Creel" is essentially concerned with angling, and yet especially colored with much more than a mere knowledge of the subject. I shall content myself with quoting a few passages that I think you will enjoy:

"If you would desire to read the fire in winter when the snows are settled, or the stream on drowsy noons—winding its way through and into the inexhaustible lore of angling like a lazy brook goes through a meadow where the grass is heavy and the reeds are high, pausing and deepening there and then soon running free again with a glitter of sun on the stickles..." * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

"The meadow brook flows where it must, yet in every rod and yard and foot of its progress it looks, and no doubt feels, free. So to the * * * * * * I shall let my fly fly now in this eddy, now in that pocket, he brings from that inexhaustible lore of angling comments of the angler's heart, and7 it seems the philosophy of the winds, the trees, the� сats, the fish, the water."

"The Kicking Habit formed in youth successfully, lays a foundation for an unsuccessful after life."

PROFESSOR SHEARD'S READING

One of the commonest sayings about a small college is that its students have frequent opportunities for intimate contact with their professors. This saying bears a tinge of envy applied to Trinity College, for while students here make numerous acquaintances among their instructors they seldom go further. Whether this always between teacher and student is the result of the trying disposition of the former or the somnolent disinterest of the latter is a matter to decide: we prefer the latter. Last Tuesday evening, a group of students and two professors to open the book, would unconsciously commit e my flies go where they will, and every eddy and pocket into which they chance to drift."

No author has more closely followed out his profertorship intentions than Professor Shepard, for in this passage he has adroitly summed the total expression of his essay. Dropping his fly now in this eddy, now in that pocket, he brings from that inexhaustible lore of angling comments of the angler's heart, and7 it seems the philosophy of the winds, the trees, the� сats, the fish, the water."

I want to bespeak a fair reception and access to all records and correspondence. These questions cry aloud for answers. But let its conduct merit such support as it asks.

The Committee is designed to serve as the medium for coordinating the efforts of Alumni and Undergraduates towards building up the personnel at Trinity. It has been composed as far as is humanly possible to obviate the dangers of partisanship, and to give it a really broad outlook. It is pledged to give its most loyal service to Trinity and I may add that it will demand a great deal of its members' energy and time.

I want to bespeak a fair reception and a whole-hearted support of its activities.

Yours very truly,

R. B. O'CONNOR, '16,
President, Trinity College Alumni Association.

before heard nothing, are unworthy of responsibility.

It is far from my intention to cast reflections upon the characters of the Undergraduates active on the Committee, but the present plan of accumulating information regarding prospective freshmen affords too much of a temptation to members to use information obtained in the interests of their particular fraternities. Why has the Committee suggested to the members of the Interfraternity Council that the list of prospective students be kept secret? Is it not true that the secretary of this newly-formed organization, worthy as he is of his position, is the only member of the Committee who has complete access to all records and correspondence? These questions cry aloud for answers.

I judge that further comment upon the Alumni plan is unnecessary, as it is easy to tear down the work of others, but hard to rebuild what has been demolished.

The Committee should be supported. But let its conduct merit such support as it asks.

Yours very truly,

SCHOOLS COMMITTEE IS FORMED BY THE ALUMNI.

In making the committee of this size the Alumni Association President had in mind a group small enough to be efficient, but he desires to have all members of the college body hold themselves in readiness to cooperate in any work that they may be requested to do.
