ADAMS ALLOWS 3 HITS TO WILLIAMS

JESTERS EXPECTANLY AWAIT CURTAIN

Sets Designed by Mr. Austin to Enhance Production—Cast is Well Trained

On Saturday afternoon, May 16, the Jesters of Trinity College will present, in Alumni Hall, "The Pigeon," by John Galsworthy.

To those who are unacquainted with the play, it is a story of a man who is not able to resist giving his belongings away, in which these people finding charity take advantage of it to become human parasites never trying to repay their benefactors.

Under the leadership of D. B. Meloney, the sets for the play are coming along splendidly. Mr. Austin has set the stage and the set is being held in Trinity's cottage for the winning run.

A play-by-play description of the game follows:

First inning:
First half: Fontanoff lined to short stop. Philpott thrown out at first by the second baseman. Armstrong next grounded to first. No hits, no runs, no errors.

Second half: Bartlett singled over second. Forbes flied out to pitcher. Warren grounded out to first. Forbes flied out to left. Ross tripled, scoring Bartlett from second. Forbes muffed Fowles's infield fly while Ross scored, but recovered the ball in time to throw out Ross at second. Two hits, two runs, one error.

Second inning:
First half: Adams singled. Bockwinkel hit by pitch allowing Adams to second. Gooding grounded out to first. No hit, no runs, no errors.

Second half: Fowles grounded out to second. Wallace reached first on a wild throw by Coleman. Fowles tripled, scoring Wallace from second. Next Adams walked, Becher reached first on an error, and Adams moved to third. No runs, one hit, one error.

Third inning:
First half: Coleman flied out to shortstop. Fowles flied out to third. Philpott called out on strikes. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second half: Coleman out on a fly to left. Becher flied out to shortstop. Fowles threw out at first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fourth inning:
First half: Adams thrown out at first by the pitcher. Adams and Becher both fanned. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second half: Fowles flied out to Armstrong. Coleman out on a fly to left. Fowles fanned, retiring the side. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fifth inning:
First half: Adams thrown out at first by Forbes. Keating thrown out at first. Carey reached first on a walk.

I am looking forward with pleasure to the School year, and I am sure that the American School of Classical Studies, in the company of Professor C. Babbitt, will give as they have done for the past five years, the kind of instruction that is appreciated by all who have been fortunate enough to have the advantage of it. I know the Greeks were wise and great thinkers, but the study of their philosophy is not to be neglected for the sake of modern thought. It is necessary to learn the principles and the facts that make these philosophers pos-served for the fifth of the month, and I hope that the School will continue to serve its students well. I am sure that the outl serves for the future of the School, and I hope that it will continue to maintain the high standards that have been set for it in the past.

When questioned about the future of the School, Professor Babbitt stated that it was founded by Charles Eliot Norton of Harvard University as a "reality" of the American Archaeological Society, for the purpose of being a beneficial influence on higher education. "The School does not aim at doing, nor merely at teaching in a specialized manner, for desiring the limit of its students. It desires also, and perhaps chiefly, to encourage on the part of the students the application of the highest standards of scholarship to archaeological research. In this respect, the School is in the main a place where students may learn to become members of the scientific community, and to work towards the advancement of knowledge in that field."

Attention has also been called to the School by the students, which it offers to students who wish to study under the best possible conditions.

When the School was founded, the purpose was to give students an opportunity to study the ancient world, and to offer them a chance to become members of the scientific community.

PERSONNEL PROBLEMS, METHODS OF ANALYSIS AND CONTROL, by Felix E. Burdick (Trinity, '14), and Earl H. Loomis.

This is a pure and general guide for the employer and the executive in business. It is a book that has been prepared for many years, as it is a guide and guide to the development of principles and policies in employing that now exist in the industry.

To the average college student it will have only a passing interest, and to the student who might feel curiosity as to the working of the best, and things which lie behind the man who interviews him for his first job. It will take him into the company by the orthodox route, but on the most direct way to get a job. Employment at best is a gamble, and good fortune does not always follow good thinking on the part of either the employer or employee.

The surrounding marks of the book is the incompressible listing of trusted suggestions and the necessary forms for filling and reference. The form is the most useful physical adjunct and the most comforting feature, but every employer and employee will need it. The advice given, and are complete and clear, and are the most useful physical adjunct and is the best guide and guide to the development of principles and policies in employing that now exist in the industry.
