JESTERS TO PRESENT "THE CIRCLE" FRIDAY

Play by Somerset Maugham First Production of the Dramatic Club This Year

A THREE-ACT COMEDY

Faculty Coaches: Messrs. Ullman and Reutler—Dancing to Follow Production.

Class of Baldwin, N. Y., Nicholas Hubinger, has already received the support of the authorities of Trinity College. Mr. Nicholas Hubinger, who is deeply interested in international affairs among students of the United States and Canada, as well as of Latin America, is a member of the Pan American Union.

As a result of the fall meetings of the Interfraternity Council, a new rushing plan using sealed bids, has been formulated for the purpose of governing rushing next year. This plan, which will be voted upon at the Interfraternity Council meeting next few weeks, if accepted, will be the first real-bid plan of phrasing fraternity situations to incoming students in the history of fraternities at Trinity.

The new plan while adhering to the rules of the Pan American Union, while adhering to the rules of the Pan American Union, will give a chance of four notes, and each team will have the first recital on the bells within a reasonable radius of the campus.

A NEW PLAN FOR RUSHING ANNOUNCED

So that the student body may have a chance of viewing the outstanding teams, the tournament will take place in the auditorium of the Glee Club. The following are the names of the teams which will be composed of five games, and each team will have the first recital on the bells within a reasonable radius of the campus.

TO THE ALUMNI

Three weeks ago the editors of Oriel, and announced that "The Tablet", Trinity's oldest undergraduate publication, which ceased existence in 1919, would again be revived on January 11, 1932, as a part of the program of a new intercollegiate football league.

But notwithstanding the interest that has already been shown by the student body, there is evidence that the Tablet will be far from empty. At Trinity there is a healthy spirit of competition, and the Tablet, as a result, will be a spirited and effective organ of the student body. The Tablet will be a great asset to the college and will provide a fine means of expression for the students. It will also be a valuable resource for the alumni, who will be able to keep up with the latest developments in the college and the world at large. The Tablet will be a welcome addition to the college and will make a great contribution to the student body.

BOOK REVIEW

STEPPING WESTWARD, by Laura E. Richards. Published by Appleton & Company, $5.00.

"To learn; to teach; to serve; to be free!"

Asked, at the age of ninety, to expound the aims of life, Julia Ward Howe made the above reply. She doubtless realized that this aim. Certain- ly her daughter, Mrs. Richards, has. Her book bears eloquent testimony to her.

Born of such illustrious parents as Julia Ward and Samuel Gridley Howe, author of "The March of Reform", she was destined by her parents for one of the most propitious to attaining an end of that sort, and she did not let her opportunity pass. After a later investigation by the editors, it was learned that she received a priceless training in literature from her father, an equally valuable in charity and philanthropy of every sort; from both, an understanding example of all that is fine and worthwhile in life. Few are the people, I fear, who have received such training. She is an example of what great gift of detecting and bringing out the good in others is. She is one of the reasons she has so many friends, and has lived such a happy life.

The book is a witty, highly interesting account of her life and the world in which she lived. It is not formally and attractively written, any of life's happenings to be recorded in the way of life as not to be put down with the rest. She speaks of old friends and incidents and places with affection but not sentimentality. Doubtless her two famous interests which she will deny that, and will readily brand much of this reminiscencing as pure sentiment. I say "redundant", for we are generally not given to be very sentimental on this subject. But Mrs. Richards is a delightful combination of the past and the present. She is too intelligent and alive to be merely a sentimental old lady.

In point of years, she covers remarkable span; she lacks but one generation to give us an intimate, personal history of the Revolutionary War. As it is, in the schoolroom, she is but not far removed from 1776. Her descriptions of visits to New York are fine. She is in perceptive that city's change in the last fifty years, and the change in events and characters. She had, as her friend or acquaintance, almost everybody in New England (and some from elsewhere), who were eminent or important in the world worth meeting. She was in the fields of literature, art, education, philanthropy, etc., a great deal. She applies not to the old days, witness a delightful allusion to Dr. Tappan's "Death of Crusaders" was that a manifesto was written apropos to the ineffectual and causing other evils, I, somewhat, for the social good. It is a little remarkable and significant to see how much Mrs. Richards has. She has such a fulsome and glowing body in New England (and some from elsewhere), we have always spoken of those almost colonial transition from those almost colonial.

The point is that the changes are evident only by reaching Mrs. Richards' age of eighty or more. Her de-

INTERCOLLEGIAL NEWS

This article, clipped from the New Yorker, was written apropos to the forthcoming article on collegiate football which appeared in the Columbus Scre­평면 several weeks ago. Some people apparently know all about editors of undergraduate publications.

"We have an increasing rate of undergraduate publications, equal or better. They are the real liberal journals of the country, because their editors are twenty-one or even twenty. At twenty­ deed the editors has the lovely tart quality of the unwise. Socially he is conservative—inmore conservative, probably, than he will ever be again; but editorially he is a rainbow of radical thought. Happily, largely, we believe, because of the sudden ergotic pleasure of literature in the dis­ cinctive literary style, instantly recnizable; a kind of pedantic sarcake in the wine; that is what campus papers are so alive, and why they are always worse than crusts of the stom­

At Williamstown the effect of the Crusaders' movement was that a manifesto was written apropos to the ineffectual and causing other evils, I, somewhat, for the social good. The Crusaders Come to Trinity Campus

W. Breckenridge Armstrong
Heads Membership Committee of College

During the past three weeks most every college in the country has responded to the challenge of the "Crusaders" that of rehearsing for the Eighteenth Amendment—by inaugurating stren-suous campaigns for memberships, and the Trinity branch, headed by Breck Armstrong, has been very successful for it is acquiring backers. Heartily endorsed by many of the colleges foremost men in Dr. John Grier Hibben, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia and Dean Clarence W. Mendell of Yale who recognize in it an incentive for the present generation to voice their opinions. The movement has met with little opposition here and has been given a great amount of consideration by all.

Let us plan for further presentation of the prohibition question before the Trinity student body has been decided upon in order that the Trinity man might comprehend more fairly when the time comes for him to vote. Whether or not the organization shall fill the campus up to the campus is not the question. It has been decided already by the college. The Crusaders will be filled beyond the campus. The present organization is composed of a chairman and representatives of the fraternities and the student body. The state legislature will be fully represented by: Armstrong, D. E. E., chairman; Harald Dicso, Sigma Nu; William A. Bicker, Psi Upsilon; John G. Traugh, Alpha Chi Omega; J. M. Henderson, Delta Phi; John P. Coleman, Neu-tra; George H. Bockwinkel, Alpha Delta Phi; and Gunman C. B. Stumpf, Delta Psi.

Having as their theme, true temper, the Crusaders feel that, in order to win the campaign, corruption, lawlessness, and the reckless drinking so prevalent today because of our extreme national law, the control of liquor should be wrested from the local and state government and instituted in state legislation that states the sale of intoxicating liquors.

They feel that the movement is for the individual states; that there be state legislation to protect those states that wish to remain dry; and that the Eighteenth Amendment which now appears impossible, be repealed. Their purposes is it the endeavor of every American to have the nation made dry.

There is a splendid Crusader spirit stirring through the colleges of the country. Breck Armstrong is one of the most living constructive Pan-Americans.

Dr. Ogilby Continues Lecture on Religion

Speaks on Continuity and Unity in Human Nature

"Fear, group instinct, and a passionate desire for continuity are the three underlying factors in human nature," said Dr. Ogilby, as he continued his talk on religion at the last freshman chapel service on Wednesday, December 5.

"Primitive fears, that is, fear of the dark and fear of humpers have more or less disappeared. Today with our modern lighting equipment, there is scarcely a child who is afraid of the dark. Fear of hunger, however, may be seen lurking in the eyes of many of the natives of the Far East. A large part of religion is to banish fear. In primitive religion, and in the Christian, the characteristics of the Christian people, do away with fear. "

"The unity of individuals in certain groups that make it act as one, group instinct, is the second important factor in human nature. Examples of this factor are football at Harvard, clustering of bees, and singing of hymns.

"The last and most important factor is the passionate desire for continuity. This is common especially among the Chinese who desire them after death. There was a time when continuity of family was taken. Sex was considered terrible; and mon would satisfy their desires in dark corners, and red light districts. Civilization may be in danger if reproduction is followed upon a large scale. Human nature is likely to God when man leaps over the cradle, and says, 'Thou art my little son.' Man is closest to God then." Dr. Ogilby will continue his talk on religion next Wednesday. The fact that Dr. Ogilby has spent quite a little time in the Philippines makes his talk double interesting, in that he oftentimes alludes to his experiences with the natives as illustrations. Promises made to be delivered to Dr. Ogilby in preparing text for the talks on religion.

Service. Casey, former Jaycee star, is also likely to break into the lineup. Outstanding in the four games with R. P. I. and Massachusetts Aggies. Both these colleges possess of powerful aggregations this season, and will test the Blue and Gold squad to the utmost.

A junior varsity squad has been practicing regularly under the tutelage of Assistant Coach Wright. Several games may be scheduled for the second before the Christmas recess, although nothing definite has as yet been arranged. Those who have shown particular aptitude for the sport include Black, Blakic and Dukas, both veterans, and Kenny, junior.

The opening contest is with the strong William, at Williams. This game is followed by games with R. P. I. and Massachusetts Aggies. Both these colleges possess of powerful aggregations this season, and will test the Blue and Gold squad to the utmost.

Table 1—No pledging is to be done before (asterisk) 1932 and any pledge offered or accepted after (asterisk) 1932 and that date will not be considered as binding, either to the fraternity on the pledge or the recognized fraternity on the campus.

(*) Dates are as yet undecided.

Article 2—The Interfraternity Council is to be notified of the men pledged after (asterisk) 1932 and that date and all pledging and breaking of pledges occurring thereafter. Notices of these matters will be posted regularly.

(*) Dates as yet undecided.

Article 3—A period of silence between upper classmen and new men will begin at the first Sunday (of the College year) at 5 a.m. and continue till 11 a.m. No fraternity man shall converse with any new man outside of his fraternity house until 12:30 p.m. of that Sunday.

Article 4—Cut-threat rushing shall begin at 1:30 p.m. Sunday and continue throughout the college year.

Article 5—Every fraternity shall turn in to the Interfraternity Council by 9 a.m., Sunday, the list of men whom they wish to have as guests for dinner on Sunday.

Sub-Article—This list is not to exceed twelve men.

Article 6—Each fraternity shall supply uniform blanks to the Interfraternity Council which they will fill out and return to the Interfraternity Council before 9 a.m. Sunday. The Council will distribute these to the new men.

Article 7—After having placed invitations in envelopes the Council will slip them under the rushees' door at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Sub-Article—Invitations to men off the campus shall be presented to the Council by 9 p.m. Saturday. The Council shall send them at their own expense, by special delivery, to the rushee.

Sub-Article—Those invitations to dinner are not equivalent to a bid.

Article 8—Resolved, That all fraternity members, undergraduates and alumni respect the engagements of rushes and of other fraternity members.

Table 10—It is understood that all fraternity members will say over fraternity matters with the rushee during rushing period; but that they must in no way intimate that the rushee will receive a bid.

As before mentioned this plan has yet to be voted upon by the fraternity representatives in the Council. It is expected that it will soon, however, come before that body for consideration.
