CHAPEL ADORNED WITH PREP SCHOOL SEALS

Memorial Plate for Martin Horan
Inserted—Carvings Placed in Cloister

During the month previous to the last, a total of $1,010 worth of money and other valuables were stolen from rooms in the college dormitories. In every case the stolen articles were left carelessly in open rooms or closets. During these times the frequent looters and swimmers have taken advantage of such carelessness. The Senate urges the members of the Student Body both to use more care in keeping their valuables locked up, and to take heed of any strangers seen in or about the dormitories in an endeavor to prevent any further loss of property.

JESTERS ELECT NEW MEN INTO SOCIETY

Organization to Give One-Act Play on Friday, in Public Speaking Room

At a recent meeting of the Jesters, seven students were elected senior Jesters, and eleven junior Jesters. The newly-elected seniors are: Albert H. Elliott, Brooklyn, New York; Rex Howard, Hartford, Conn.; John M. Prutting, Hartford; Nicholas W. De Calvis, New York City; Andrew H. Ostrom, Balston Spa, N. Y.; Frank F. Fairchild, New York City; and John A. Day, Hartford. The newly-elected seniors are: John H. Loomis, Pomfret, N. Y.; and Graham A. Shepard, Trumbull, Conn.

Upon the resignation of T. Robert Stumpf, Albert Holland became Business Manager of the Jesters. Dr. Stumpf had been Business Manager of the Jesters for only six weeks, during which period he financial standing of the Jesters on a firmer basis, which has enabled the Jesters to conduct their business for many years. No assistant Business Manager has ever been appointed.

The Jesters hope to give two more performances this year in Alumni Hall, as well as two or three campus plays, which will be given in the Public Speaking Room. If two-three acts are presented, one will probably be given just before Easter vacation, the other some time during Senior week-end.

The first of the one-act plays is to be entitled, "It Starts at 8," act, and will be presented at eight o'clock, in the Public Speaking Room. The play is "The Bishop's Candleshade."

The plot of the play is taken from one of the best known detective stories of Hugo's "Les Misérables." The members of the cast have been practicing their parts for the last two weeks and the result no doubt will be a most amusing performance.

The cast consists as follows:

The Bishop—Philip Edward Coyle, Jr.

The Convent—J. Victor Greenfield.

The Student—Frederick W. Shaw, President of Wil．

Rumblings, 3rd.

First Scholar.

No admission will be charged and the profits are to be devoted by the Jesters to all students and members of the faculty.

BLUE AND GOLD SQUASH RACOONETS TEAM LOSES

Superior New Haven Lawn Tennis Club Wins All Games
—Return Match Scheduled

On Saturday, January 9, the Trinity Squash Racquet team met the New Haven Lawn Tennis Club team in a four-game match at the Alden, for the second set-back suffered by the Blue and Gold in as many starts this season.

The game was closed throughout, the score being tied no less than six times during the encounter. Trinity put on such a much better exhibition of court play than on the previous evening at Williams. However, the accurate passing and shooting of the Eniores more than offset the fast attack of the Blue and Gold. The next game, a Rensselaer defeat at half time by the slim margin of 9 to 8.

Kenny and Daut shone on the offense for Trinity with seven and six points, respectively, Kenny, especially, with several long lobs from mid-court. Pottery, Rensselaer guard, was the next game's hero, making nine points himself to lead the Troy team.

Box score: Trinity, 6; R. P. I., 9.

WOLF, D. F.; Pottery, 2; Tiffany, J. F.; Bernas, J. F.; Cran, G. L.; Smith, 3; Pottery, 0.

Team Loses 10-28 to Williams: umpire, Colket; time, 20-minute relay.

DR. OGILVIE SPEAKS ON WISE MEN IN CHAPEL

Defines Three Types of Wise Men in Address to Upper Classmen

On Wednesday, January 6, at the service in the College Chapel for upper, President Ogilvie spoke on Wise Men. He called atten- tion to the fact that the Bible accounts of the naivity story mentions the visit of wise men, without any specifications as to their number or status. Tradition and devout imagin- ation in the years elaborated the story so that we now appear three kings as three kings named Caspar, Mel- chior, and Balthasar. They are times represented as three different races: the white, the yellow, and the brown.

It is at this time impossible for us to distinguish between legend and history, just as it was the nature of this visitation. In any case, these three men were, and are, wise men. What is of supreme importance, however, is that the Christian church has associated with the beginning the consecration of wisdom to spiritual ends.

Cliques

It always happens that whenever a group of people are together, a great deal, have the same interests and a common roof, that group becomes a clique, considers itself “in” and does not mingle with others. This narrow state of society exists at Trinity, engendered, for the most part, by the fraternities. Of course it is just human nature. We do not condemn any sincere feeling of brotherhood. But such groups have a tendency to be interested in their own welfare only and cause a lukewarm college spirit.

Student organizations have forced many of group to meet together with a common interest, causing them to get outside of their own particular cliques and become more concerned with affairs that have to do with the college as a whole. Mingling with others in this way has broken down many men’s exclusiveness because of some imagined superiority.

The man who sticks close to his fraternity and puts it above his college not only fails to get one of the outstanding benefits of college education but is not a college man. He is a fraternity man in the narrow sense of the word.

LEAGUE BASKETBALL

Last week saw the first games played in the National and American Leagues in intramural basketball. The league system is an innovation this year, and should prove to be beneficial.

In the system used you see there were two teams, each team consisting of two games. This is against the principles of intramural athletics which stand for the promotion of good fellowship and sportsmanship between the various schools.

Professor Oosting and the Physical Education department, much praise is due for this new system.

AN OLD GRAD OF ‘33 TALKS TO THE MEN OF 197-

“Gentlemen, honor has indeed been thrust upon me by this opportunity to address a group of young Trinity men, class of nineteen hundred and seventy-four, to talk informally with you about Trinity in My Day and Yours?”

“My class was in a far goal to my class of nineteen twenty-nine. To me called the best class of my time. We had wooden stands, and only one side of the Administration raised the price on the bells, and one suffers with the sa l ary w i th the college, if they

“Who would have thought that the march which was on the southeastern part of the campus could be so nicely landscaped and bordered, along Broad Street and by one stone and wrought-iron fence?"

“What about the class of nineteen thirty-one? We used to hold our gym classes years ago. Perhaps I had some good times in that fire-trap. We used to hold our gym classes years ago. Perhaps I had some good times in that fire-trap."

“Next right to the chapel was Alumni hall, that’s gone 30 years. We used to hold our gym classes in that old building. They say it was the biggest building in New York City, and it was long before my time. Upstairs there was a barren-looking room we used for dances and retreats and parties. Of course, your new auditorium and floor is far superior, but we had some good times in the little gym."

We used to fix it up pretty well with the ruffles of pale blue muslin and fraternity furniture carried all the way from Vernon Street by grum bling freshmen. The Jesters used to build all their own scenery in my day and had to put up a portable, creaky stage for every performances.

“Naturally with a collegiate agreement about this, you have a large-cut-of-town attendance, and had to build a bowl; but in the ’20’s they charged so much money for the games nobody would come. Our field was woody and wooded, and only one side filled at many games.

“I, the fraternity, I see, have all new houses now (perhaps I should say manors), Trinity’s fraternities larger to be behind the times in their old houses, but we were only raising building-funds in the ’20’s. Our biggest fraternity worries then were money and the Alumni trophy. I understand you have a new Alumni cup now. They put the first name on the old one in ’31. We thought, then, it would last through all eternity, it seemed so big.

“1’m certainly glad to see that the Administration has seen fit to put the cut-system on a gentleman’s basis. It was in my Junior year of that year that they not only took another cut away from us, but also doubled the cuts taken away.

“The McCook dorm was first used the middle of my Junior year. Everybody wanted to live there, so the Administration raised the price and I stopped a part. That building doesn’t look now the way it did then. The woodwork was never designed. The hand-carved cars, but at least the building has acquired some Trinity atmosphere after forty years. It seems a little more like old Northam and Jarvis.

Theinator has certainly done a splendid job in the Museum. With the American Memorial with its new exhibits, and a full-time staff working on the collections, there is a real improvement. Forty-old years ago, we seldom used the museums, for the collections were not displayed in an interesting manner, they were thick with dust and hadn’t been touched for years. Many of the specimens were only copies and those in poor condition. Professor Treadwell was fond of the museums but naturally stopped with collections of minerals and horse-horns. Of course, your art gallery in the left-wing of the new “—I” Hall is something bad.

“Moving pictures were old stuff even in my day, but we didn’t have the benefit of them at all. Now you use the ‘talkies’ and television output, but to me, the big point in movies is that we have obtained films at little expense from many sources but the Administration gave us new office of cultural or even educational. I remember we were still in the ‘last-tide-stages’

“I used to work in the Library. A number of books from the Carnegie Institute have been used to study in the one big room of the Library, and Dr. Adams, who was Librarian then, never succeeded in keeping the room quiet because the place was free of linoleum. Every step, every move of a chair was a noise. I see, however, that most of this disturbance has been eliminated by that new addition you have of a group of smaller rooms, a study, and an entirely new floor of soundless cork-composition. We knew what cork-flooring was in ’32, but we also knew what depression was; so we had no cork-floor, but we had noise.

“Of course, I could talk on for an hour, but I see some restless movements in my audience (that’s one of the things I always expected at Trinity). It is not a bad place when one is ready. I may have another opportunity to tell you something about the profits of my day.”

COMMUNICATION

Dear Sir:

Before vacation students at Trinity and people living in Hartford had the pleasure of listening to a recital by Kamelie LeFevre on the carved carousel. This recital thrilled all who heard it. The beauty of the selections was not entirely due to the excellence of the bells, but was greatly enhanced by the skill of the Mr. LeFevre. This fact does not seem to have been appreciated by some.

About six o’clock, every night including Sundays, one started at the chimes of the bells in the tower. Our picture had given us many new books and we spent most of our time, finding a place for them in our overcrowded stacks. A number of students also knew what depression was; so we had no cork-floor, but we had noise.

“Whatever you do, do better than the average, whatever you undertake see it through.”

Strong Sigma Nu Team Downs Neutral Blues

Captain Fontana is High Scorer—Game Opens American League Season

On Thursday, January 7, the first game of the American League inter­mural basketball tournament was won by a strong Sigma Nu team over the Neutral Blue team.

Captain Joe Fontana of the Sigma Nu quintet was the high scorer of the game and the outstanding player, scoring five times from the floor and one from the free-throw mark. For the Neutral Blues Captain Gallinsky and Paoli shared scoring honors, Gallinsky scoring once from the floor and twice on fouls, while Paoli netted two field goals.

Throughout the entire game the Sigma Nu maintained a one-sided lead. Their fast passing attack time and again left the Neutrals standing at one end of the court while Elliot or Adams scored easily.
