Quotations From the Trinity Tripod
Beginning 1927, Form Story of Building

This number of the Tripod, coming out as it does on the day that the chapel is dedicated, is an appropriate place to summarize the history of the plans for the building and the story of the work as it progressed. Whenever possible excerpts from past Tripods are used together with such remarks as were felt necessary to form a complete account of this history.

On December 9, 1927, this headline appeared—"Gift of New Chapel Contemplates a New Campus Life." The editors followed a write-up about William Gwin Mather, ’77, the donor.

"Mr. Mather, whose gift makes possible a new chapel at Trinity, was born in Cleveland, Ohio, on November 22, 1857. He took the degree of M.A. at Trinity College in 1877, and in 1904 was graduated in the degree of LL.D., by Kenyon College. His business career began with the Cleveland Iron Company in 1878, and but twelve years later, in 1890, he became president of the company, a position he has held since then. He is chairman of the board of directors of the Ohio Steel Company; president of the Lake Superior & Ishpeming Railway Company; director of the Union Trust Company, the Guardian Trust Company, and the White Motor Company."

"He is a trustee of Trinity, of Kenyon College, Western Reserve University, and of耶路撒冷的 Union Historical Society."

In the middle of October, 1928, Dr. Ogilby opened houses in the basement of Boardman Hall which had been vacated for four-and-thirty years. They contained the stone framework and were rented as furnished apartments from Whitehall Palace, built by Cardinal Wolsey. These stones had been in view from the beginning of the college and were the work of William C. Rouse, a citizen of Hartford.

"Mr. Philip H. Proctor, architect of the Cathedral of Washington, who had been work­ing on plans for the new chapel at Trinity, came to Hartford on Tuesday, October 23, 1929, with Mr. William Mather, donor of the chapel, to go over the preliminary plans for the chapel and to inspect the window stones.

YOU ARE BEGINNING AT THE BOTTOM

If we were to write the traditional editorial usually addressed to the graduating class, we would begin something like this:

You are beginning at the bottom, this is your commencement. You are now going to take up the old dream and hide it in your heart, so that if you have gone before. You are truly commencing your life-work. What has the world done to you? Or, what would you choose to do? If you do what you love, and love what you do, you will find that you have a sublime possession. It is well to remember that the Dean spent five years. F. C. Hedrick was salutatorian. The Dean hopes to study French for a short and the frequent cheering. Walter

CAMPUS OR MEADOW?

The constant cry is to improve our campus by building more and finer buildings, yet no widespread efforts are being made to beautify these buildings and grounds which we have.

If you are not contented within twenty minutes walking-time from the center of Hartford, and only two miles from New York, yet the effect of coming upon our campus is the same as entering Litchfield, which has fine buildings, but whose, land is cared for only immediately about these buildings while the rest is left as swamps and rolling meadows for animals and people to roam upon at will.

The campus of the Trinity TRIPOD are at all times open to students, undergraduates, and others for the free discussion of matters of interest to Trinity men.
