TWENTY TAKE PART IN "WINGS OVER EUROPE"

Howard, MacVeagh, and Pruett Have Leading Parts in Jesters' Production

ADMISSION FEE REJECTED

Play to be Presented at Hartford Club on Week-End Following Vacation

Opening the season of 1932, the Jesters will present at the Hartford Club on Lewis Street on Friday and Saturday evenings, April 8th and 9th, Robert Nichols and Maurice Brown's, "Wings Over Europe", a tragedy-written in three acts. This is the first time in four years, that a Jester's dramatic production has been held off the campus.

The players have been rehearsing diligently for the past few weeks, and according to a statement issued recently by Mr. Holmberg, the faculty coach, the finishing touches will be put on the production on Saturday evening, four weeks after vacation. This is the first major performance offered by the Jesters since the Maynooth's, "The Circle", which was presented last December, and for the first time in the history of dramas at Trinity, that a play of Robert Nichols on Maurice Brown has been selected.

Invitations have been sent to the supporters of the organization, and the performance of "Wings Over Europe" has already received the support of many prominent residents of Hartford, as well as members of the faculty. The admission fee for the production has been reduced to 75 cents for students and $1.00 for others.

The Jesters' production includes a cast of twenty, and is coached by William Holmberg of the Greek Department. The players, who are working on for the past four weeks, and the coach will spend the rest of the time in perfecting details.

Rifle Team Defeats Wentworth Institute

Gadd High Scorer—Win is First in Series of Three Matches

The Trinity Rifle Team won its match with the Wentworth Rifle Team on March 12 by a 35-point margin. This was the third match with Wentworth, the first two having been won by the opposing team. The Trinity team won four out of six matches to date.

W. Warner Re-Elected Freshman Class Head

Voorhees and Mowbray Selected as Vice-Pres. and Treasurer Respectively

At the recent freshman elections for class officers for the second semester, which took place last Thursday, March 17, William Henry Warner was re-elected class president. Clark Mowbray was elected vice-president, and Terry Mowbray was re-elected as secretary and treasurer. Warner, a member of the Phi Kappa Chapter of the fraternity, was an outstanding athlete in this, spring and basketball. Voorhees, a member of the Kappa Delta Chapter of the sorority, was also outstanding on the soccer field and on the swimming squad this winter. Mowbray was an ardent worker on both the soccer and swimming squads.

All freshmen who attended the elections voted, regardless of whether they had paid their dues or not, and although these delinquents in paying their dues were not eligible to hold office, they were permitted to vote.

This practice, a new one at Trinity College, was adopted because of the fact that very few freshmen would have found themselves eligible to vote under the former arrangement, so few of them having paid past dues. It was thought that the men thus excluded from the class as a whole would be more truly representative of that body.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT AS BASEBALL SEASON NEARS

Team Faces Hard Schedule—Squad to Report After Vacation

The Trinity baseball team has been working out in the gymnasium for about a week. Among the aspirants for the pitcher's berth are Coach Gil Wright, are eight veterans and several promising freshmen. Captain Jack Gooding alone is missing from the squad who composed the fine team last year. The team will consist of the rest of last year's crew, with most of the starting positions filled by players of the first team.

The schedule for the season is so arranged that the team will be ready for the opening game with Harvard on Class Day.

The play, a three-act tragic-comedy with a cast of twenty, will be presented Friday and Saturday evening, April 8 and 9, at 8:15 at the Hartford Club.

A veteran array will cover the out- field territory, Armstrong, Carey, and Vignali, all of three regulars, will be supplemented by a talented freshman, who has also shown promise.

Turning to the batting candidates we find Captain Phippen, veteran re- ceiver, firmly entrenched behind the plate with Bell as a capable under- taker. Emboden, who has handled the bulk of the mound duties with lit- tle help from other fielders, will be captain of the ball club for this season. Other players are Captains of the Of- ficials and Houlihan, who did some relief work last year, are followed by Flaherty, both new men. Hendry is reputed to be an experienced slub artist while Flaherty, a southpaw, performed for the William Hall High School of West Hartford. Still another possibility is Elsworth who will be available last spring.

The schedule appeared in somewhat more difficult than any previously essayed by a Blue and Gold team in more recent years. Harvard appears on it after a lapse of some years, coming to Hartford for two contests, March 30 and April 6. Other teams to be included are the Connecticut Tech., Branford Tech., and New London Tech., as well as others.

During one weekend, winger, Smith, will be available for the evening on the ballet board.

The jousting will be confined to a song introduced in the program. The evening will be a well attended one, and the auditorium will be filled to capacity.

A well-appointed dinner party was given for the members of the cast by the cast of the "Overture" on the ballet board, and the cast of the "Overture" will be presented on the ballet board, and the cast of the "Overture" will be presented on the evening of the ballet.

REDUCED PRICES FOR SPRING PLAY OF JESTERS

The Jesters have reduced the admission prices for their spring production, "Wings Over Europe", to 75 cents for students and $1.00 for others.

The play, a three-act tragic-comedy with a cast of twenty, was presented Friday and Saturday evening, April 8 and 9, at 8:15 at the Hartford Club.

We can recall the time, not long ago, when the Glee Club was an important impetus for the fostering of informal competition. No longer need our pool be used only by the graduates. Perhaps some steps will soon be taken to ensure that a full-time professor of music, which gave the Glee Club its first life, but it is only within the past two or three years that they have shown that they are aware of the situation at hand and are going to take steps to make sure that the Glee Club is doing something for Trinity in its own field. We have received many favorable comments from both alumni and students about the Glee Club, and we hope that these comments will continue to be forthcoming.

For my part, I have no objection to the appearance of a humorous column in the Tripod, nor do I think that any student should have to feel that public opinion requires that he be on or off, but that by choosing to say Miss Garro so as long as he can, the student desires gossipy information about his fellows (and we all love it), and can do something to fit. We compliment the club

Extra-curricular activities have long been a part of our college life, but it is only within the past two or three years that they have assumed the role of real activities. We feel that the work of the Freshmen and Seniors, who have thrown to us the encroachment of the Glee Club and Choir, is something for the free discussion of matters of interest to Trinity men.

Are classes wanted?

The suggestion was recently made to us by a member of the Faculty that we were not getting enough interest shown about the classes situation at Trinity. He pointed out that as classes, the organization of these classes, the planning of their schedule, and the use of the college, are small, and that at that time, as an example of this trend. The very fact that in this issue we carry the story of the Freshman and Senior classes, which have been subjected to the "police's stick" for forcing payment of dues, would seem to show the desire for stronger class groups on this campus. The Freshmen and Seniors, who have thrown off the "police's stick" for forcing payment of dues, our Senators seem to be still fending the air, while the classes struggle. Perhaps the Senator feels that the Freshmen and Seniors have solved the problem by opening their elections to all. There is little doubt in our minds that these classes have certainly done a democratic thing, but how long can a class run efficiently without money? The Senator should furnish the classes with financial backing so that they can have the spirit of equality. Two classes have broken out of the "feminile circle."
GREAT EAST WINDOW OF NEW CHAPEL DESCRIBED

Third and Last Article of Series Portrays it as Representing Christian Revelation.

This is the third and last of the series of articles on the Chapel windows; it deals with the East and Rose windows, the two remaining ones as yet underscribed.

The scheme of the Choir windows along the sides is to be the age-long search of man to find out God. Present at all of these is the angel, but it is expected that they will depict the gradual unfolding of the idea of God in which are shown all the great religious past. In the sanctuary there are two windows on each sides. The two at the left will represent the beginning of the world, perhaps in Hebrew poets and prophets; and the two on the right will attempt to express the contribution of Greek philosophical thought.

The great East window represents the Christian Revelation, and shows apostles, prophets, and martyrs: angels, kings, and all the holy ones, baring the Gospel of Christ the Lord. It is what is known as a Te Deum window, and all through the different panels is woven the text of the Te Deum in Latin with the opening verses at the bottom.

In the lower part of the center panel, the book window, is the founder and first president of the college, represented as officiating at the service of Holy Communion. Below him, and in the central part, one should see it himself, God as shown in the great religions of man, glorification of God, is an inspiring thought. For this reason, the Rose window in the Trinity Chapel is the Mothers' Window representing a tribute to mother love by the Trinity men. At the foot of the windows, the two remaining ones are two windows on each sides. The two at the left, St. Augustine and Pope Gregory, by whom he was sent to England. At the right are St. Paul and Bishop Berkeley. The latter is shown wearing his mitre, which is now under glass in the College Library. The shield on the left is that of the coat of arms of the see of London, and on the right is that of Connecticut.

In the right-hand panel at the top is shown Constantine the Great, with his wife Helen, and the Virgin, and King Arthur. In the next panel, above the book window, is the portrait of Alphred Lincoln can be seen, and next to him, a little slave boy breaking bread and a child, the author of the famous Te Deum. In the left-hand panel are seen Moses, David, Abraham, and other worthies. All through the window are groups of angels bearing shields, on which are represented the Twelve Prophets of the Holy Spirit. These mount higher and higher until they gather round the great King, represented as the midst, with His Mother and Sister on either side. The representation of the figure of Christ took much time and several trials in drawing. He is in gold and in the background a view of the city. It did not seem appropriate, however, to picture him with the trappings of the earthly royalty He refused to wear. Accordingly, He is shown in the simplicity of the humanity with which He judged the world. The artist has placed in His book an illegible name of the Seven Seals, which St. John in the Revelation said only the Lamb of God was found worthy to open. He has broken the seals and is slowly unrolling the scroll with pain and reluctance, for it represents the judgment on His people. In the tracery on the other part of the window is shown angels with various musical instruments, and other Christian symbols, such as the pelican in the center at the top.

Following ancient custom, the artist has introduced in the lower right-hand corner of the window, the donors of the Chapel, Mr. Mother, and his wife; adding their praise to the hymn of the saints. In the lower left-hand corner, Mr. Mother wanted to introduce a typical Connecticut family with their contribution of praise; thus are pictured President and Mrs. Ogilvy with their three sons, Peter, Lyman, and "Sandy". A triumph of beauty of design and color, this great window, with itsassed collection of human glorification of God, is an inspiring focal-point of the Chapel.

In the Middle Ages, the Rose window at the west end was usually dedicated to the Blessed Virgin, a lovely jewel for her to wear on her breast. The devotion to the Blessed Virgin characteristic of the Middle Ages was due partly to the fact that every man had a mother whom he loved. For this reason, the Rose window in the Trinity Chapel is the Mothers' Window representing a tribute to mother love by Trinity men. At the foot of the window is to be placed the Mothers' Book in which will be inscribed the names of the mothers, and those of their sons who made contributions to the window.

It is a jewel window without much in the way of pictorial representation. In the center is shown the Blessed Virgin and the Holy Child, while in the circles round are the various symbols of the Blessed Virgin, altering the round window. Its true beauty cannot well be described upon paper, to appreciate it fully, one should see it himself, and upon that a late afternoon when the sun shines from behind, transforming it truly into the Jewel it represents.

CONVOCATION OF GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

Held at Washington, D. C., on February 22, 1932

The Convocation of George Washington University, held in the beautiful Constitution Hall, was an event of the Daughters of the American Revolution, February 22, honored George Washington, the Father of our Country, and celebrated the one hundred and eleventh year of the founding of the University.

Perhaps the most impressive part of the Convocation was the presence of representatives, most of them with Doctors’ hoods, who filed into the hall during the short program scheduled for the occasion. A group of nine charmingly attired and appropriate music by an excellent orchestra. The procession, which included, William Bowers of the Class of ’63 of Trinity College, Chief of the Division of Geography in the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, was made up of representatives of about three hundred and sixty educational institutions in this country.

The representatives formed in the concourse of Constitution Hall in the chronological order of the founding of their institutions. The list headed the list, followed by the College of William and Mary, St. John’s College (Annapolis), Yale University, University of Pennsylvania, etc. Trinity ranked twenty-third in the list. Immediately after Trinity came Kenyon College and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. The last institution on the list was Eastern Oregon Normal School, which was founded in 1899.

Among the guests of honor were Vice-President Curtis and his sister, Mrs. H. A. Bowers, and Mrs. Patrick Jay Hurley, wife of the Secretary of War.

Dr. Clyde Heck Marvin, President of Trinity, delivered a very impressive address commending the spirit of George Washington and outlining his vision. Dr. Marvin said that George Washington would stand for if he were living in these times. He laid particular stress upon Washington’s devotion to the young country above all else, calling upon faith and justice toward all nations; cultivate peace and harmony with all, and live up to any standards that it might as.

In the closing address came the word degrees which included Bachelor of Arts, Master of Arts, Bachelor of Laws, Bachelor of Science, and some others in course.

Honorary degrees were conferred upon forty-one of the Alumni of George Washington University. Among the outstanding men of the day to receive honorary degrees were: Patrick Jay Hurley, Secretary of War, to receive degree of Doctor of Laws; George Bruce Cortelyou, former Secretary of the Treasury, Doctor of Laws; and Nelson Truesdale Jr., Attorney at Law, Doctor of Laws. The degree of Doctor of Science was awarded to Smith Basler of the United States Geological Survey, John Howard Dellinger of the U.S. Air Force, Joseph Fels Ritt of Columbia University and Alexander Wetmore of the Smithsonian Institution.

Mr. Jaquith was connected with the General Electric Company and is one of the most respected people in the engineering profession.
