Dr. Ogilby addresses English "A" students

Tell's of Philippine Island Religions in First of Series

On November 23, President Ogilby instituted a group of weekly lectures to the English A class to be given by himself, in the rooms of the English Department. Various subjects will be discussed during the term the first two of these, already given on Sundays in the lounge of the English Class to be given by Mr. Gage. The first lecture of the present series was on the Factions of Religion, and the following four will treat of the effect of Religion on the various cultures of the world. The lectures will be given in the English Department on Sundays at 1:30 p.m., and the students are requested to attend them regularly.

Rifle club loses in first postal match

Defeated by Lowell textile in narrow margin—Team gets challenges

The Trinity rifle club held its first match on December 2 at the Armory in Hartford against Lowell textile. The Blue and Gold team, coached by F. B. Broom, mortimer, Lee, Johnson and Hall, lost the match by the narrow margin of 22 to 17. The team played a postal match in which each team shoots the match and sends the results to their opponents by mail. Practically all the team's moves in this match were postal matches. The team had little time to get in position, the shooting was done in a disorganized manner, and the team was not ready for the match, which was held at the Institute of Boston, on January 21.

The club has received challenges from other teams, and their prospects are bright for the future. They are determined to make a strong showing in the future.

Hockey rink again here defying cold

Friday, December 9, the workmen finished the hockey rink just south of the flaps with the ice and the weather is now suitable for a game or two. The weather is cold and the temperature is below freezing.

Varsity five to meet Haverford Saturday

Team has prospects for good season as opening game nears

The Trinity basketball team will open its schedule this Saturday night by meeting Haverford College at the New York Athletic Club. The prospects for the Trinity team are good, and many of the players have been working hard to prepare for the game. The team is composed of freshmen, sophomores, and juniors, and is expected to be a strong one for the season.

Many dine at annual N.Y. Alumni meeting

Bern Bude elected president of Alumni Association again secretary

The annual meeting of the New York Alumni Association was held in the New York Athletic Club on December 8, at the Phi Gamma Delta Club. There was a large attendance at the meeting, and the proceedings were concluded on time. The meeting was called to order by the president, and the minutes of the last meeting were read. The financial statement of the Association was read, and the treasurer reported that the Association had a balance of $200 in the bank. The officers of the Association were then elected, and the new officers were installed.

Caution and care are necessary in handling of ice on the floor. The ice should be kept clean and free from dirt and other foreign matter. The players should wear shoes that are suitable for the conditions and should be careful not to slip or fall on the ice. The game will be played in the usual manner, with the exception that the officials will be more careful to see that the players are not injured.

Practice contest for swimmers is arranged

Men's meet Hartford Y.M.C.A. as first competitors on Saturday, Dec. 17

The Trinity swimming team will take part in its first contest of the season in a practice match arranged by Coach Clark to give his squad some experience in actual competition. The meet will be held at the Hartford Y.M.C.A., and will be the first test of the swimming ability of the team. The meet will be held on Saturday, December 17, at 2:30 p.m., and will consist of two meets, the first being the men's meet and the second being the women's meet. The teams will consist of six men and six women, and each team will be divided into two divisions of three men and three women. The matches will be held under the rules of the American Swimming Association, and will be judged by a referee appointed by the Association. The matches will be held in the pool of the Hartford Y.M.C.A., and will be watched by the officials of the Association.

Dance in dining hall planned for Saturday

Arrangements made for affair December 17, following the close of the Haverford game

Arrangements have been made for an informal dance to be held in the Dining Hall Saturday evening, December 17, after the close of the Haverford game. The athletic management has arranged to have the Junior varsity game played at the same time, and the dance will be held in the same location. The dance will be held in the usual location, and will be open to all members of the faculty and students. The dance will be held in the usual manner, with the exception that the music will be played by a live band and the dancing will be more lively than usual.

Notice

There will be a meeting of the Editorial and Business Boards of the 1934 Fy in the Triple Room, Thursday, December 15, at 4 p.m. It is important that all members of both boards attend this meeting, as several important matters will be discussed.

If this dance proves a success, it will be possible to arrange for similar dances after other big home games.

Economics instructor discusses international monetary situation

Professor and Mrs. Humphrey entertained the students of his history classes and the members of the faculty at their home at West Hartford on Friday, December 2. The reception was opened by three violin selections played by James Martens, of the class of 1933. Following in actual competition, Mr. Taylor, of the Economics Department, gave a talk on the International Monetary Situation which set the reparations at $17,000,000, contingent on favorable war conditions, and the Young Republicans from the present situation, which also necessitated a further conference.

The proposal was for a Monroe Conference at Geneva.

On Sunday, December 13, of this year, the Secretary of State, Mr. Stimson, announced that the United States would participate only if the conference was entirely separate from any references to the Turkish question. The conference will be held in the next month. President Roosevelt asked for applications to send a special committee which Congress would consider before the next meeting. President Roosevelt asked for applications to send a special committee which Congress would consider before the next meeting. President Roosevelt asked for applications to send a special committee which Congress would consider before the next meeting.

The first speaker following the dinner was President Ogilby, who dwelt on the academic and athletic aspects of the college and laid down the policy of the faculty as to the future of the college. The president concluded his address by expressing his appreciation of the cooperation of the students and the faculty, and by asking for their continued support.

The second speaker was Mr. Taylor, who dwelt on the history of the college and the changes that have taken place since its founding. He emphasized the importance of the college as a center for the education of young men, and he stressed the need for continued support of the college.

The encounter, face to face with realities, of Spencer Scardale's novel, "Dark City," is a romance of a hero he had never known. There is a strange and bitterness in the hopelessness of his allusions to the beauty and glamour of Jula Marwood. Then Eleanor! Her wisdom and understanding served as an antidote to the unhappy Spencer.

This is certainly not one of WarwicLk Deeping's usual contributions to fiction. Something of the sterility and callousness of his past is evident in the rhetoric of Deeping is missing. Just another book that is threatened to be

AFTERNOONS IN UTOPIA: Stephens Leacock; Published by Dodd, Mead and Company; $2.00.

As refreshing a dose of the well-known humor and satire of Stephens Leacock, as has appeared on book shelves for a long time.

"Aftemoons in Utopia" is an exception to the rule of standardized fiction. All of the bright possibilities of the professor-eminens, the master humorist, and the unusual satire are displayed in these tales of our modern perplexity.

There are ideas beneath the fun that captivate and win the reader. We, who are preparing our-­nselves for the second half year with the usual records of the past, will find no delay or discussion in regard to the question of purchasing uni­forms for the men playing in the other four major sports. Why should any distinction be made in regard to the swimming team?

The Association has taken the step of rewarding the swimming team by making swimming a major sport, and is now on the point of making that reward a hollow one. We can only be fair.

We note with pleasure that during the past few weeks several fine changes in the landscape of the campus have taken place. This is indeed a forward step, and one that will be welcomed by all the members of the college. Naturally, there is room for a great deal more to be done. However, any progress in this direction has the distinct advantage of being much appreciated and quickly noticed by the students. Although the snow has at this point hinders the work, we hope that this improvement will continue throughout the year.

COMMUNICATIONS

Although communications may be published at the discretion of the editor, the writer must in every case be committed to the principles of the Tripod. OFFICIAL NOTICE.

Students who have been granted scholarship aid for the first half of the year will automatically continue to hold those scholarships for the second half year without any renewal of applic­ation, provided they get at mid-years the necessary form.

They must be passing in at least five courses, with an average of 70% for Freshmen, 75% for Sophomores and Juniors, and 80% for Seniors.

Undergraduates who have no scholarships now desire and shall receive scholarship aid for the second half year are hereby invited to apply for a few scholarships, forfeited because of low grades, to be awarded after mid-years.

Application for such scholarships must be made on the regular blanks to be obtained at the College Office and handed in before January 15. It is important to remem­ber that the number of scholarships to be assigned will probably be very small, and that it will be impossible to grant all the applications.

Preference will naturally be given to those estab­lishing genuine need and getting high marks.

AMERICAN PORTS: Mark Van Doren; Published by Dodd, Mead and Company; $3.75.

There is always room for a new anthology of American verse, and "American Poets," edited by Mark Van Doren and covering the three centuries of our history, is a very welcome addition to the library.

Van Doren has not tried to commend his choice of one book or a reference book in which you can find practically any American verse you are looking for. Instead, he has tried to present only the most significant and lasting contributions to the poetic traditions of our nation.

To the Editor of The Trinity Tripod.

There are so many manners and customs in life that are comparatively new but so long W. B. W. M. will find obligatory chapel attendance as he passes through Trinity and out into a cold world. As he chooses to be, matter of fact, and act up in the age he has ex­pressed his love and adoration for the Deity.

We, who are preparing ourselves for this world, must acknowledge that religion is a half-made philosophy and a half-bred spiritual consciousness as he grows in ex­perience and observation.

Dobbs, the Chapel building as the gathering place for religious observance, is, in every way, all the familiar faces, the chaplain's sermons, the organ music, the popular and classical literature, the central event in a day of reading, study, classrooms, athletics, eating, amusements and sleeping. The man with the name of Hamilton is a heart-felt necessity at Trinity. We have, thanks to our own Professor Odell Shepard, weekly readings in the lounge, which, every week, are growing more popular with the students, as they provide true intellectual discussions amid surroundings far removed from the musty scent of the lecture room.

Our next meeting will be concerned with contentment of body, and the erection of the Cook Dormitory has not only helped to solve the rooming problem, but also the question of where to put the visit­ing lecturer.

For large groups the lounge would prove inadequate, but the Dining Hall is adjacent, so we advocate that now we have excellent accommodations for good speakers, let us have more of them.—E. S. P.

smack too much of meddling and sacrifice, London was finally decided on. The time for the meeting was the next question. October or November of this year was suggested but as the United States was on the verge of a general election these provisional dates were abandoned. The reason being that if the conference was held before the presidential election, the commission sent over would be Hoover's appointees, and if he were defeated at the polls, a Democratic Congress might not ratify the commission's findings.

The present monetary situation appears as a result of several factors, among them constantly falling prices and continued payments into this country combined with the refusal on the part of the Federal Reserve to allow normal price inflation on the basis of incoming funds; constant raising of trade restrictions; deflation in Europe resulting in monetary panic and the freezing of foreign investments there. Also hesitancy regarding the American political situation, and finally anxiety over the war debts.

The continual drain of gold, from England in particular, into the United States and France has resulted in a serious loss of gold reserves abroad, and tariff barriers designed to increase exports—though actually acting to decrease both exports and imports—have effected a serious trade dislocation, the rectification of which is necessary before improvement can be expected in the monetary condition. Outstanding characteristics of the last decade are the inability and unwillingness of the world financial powers to assume the responsibilities incumbent upon them as such.

Mr. Taylor then gave some of his views upon what should be done to alleviate the monetary troubles of the world. He said that the world powers should be made to recognize the responsibilities of international leadership, and that nations on the gold exchange standard should also be led to recognize their duty to those countries on the gold standard to whose currencies they are hitched. He added that since, at the present, prices, dealers—private and public—are unable to bear their obligations raising of the price levels through international inflation is necessary. Repudiation can produce only deflation, and a scaling down of debts which would kill the reparation services. They may be considered only through the return of trade equilibrium. This indicates the impossibility of a solution of the monetary situation without careful consideration of trade restrictions.

Mr. Taylor then said that the commodification of the tobacco industry would probably show the unsalvageable quality of monetary discussion with artificial exclusion of the basic factors. The meeting may do nothing if there is a default on the war debts which would kill the reparation decisions and work havoc with foreign credit. They might voice the unfeasibility of central bank cooperation in some sort of concerted action, which would mean the sacrifice of some principles. They may be expected to advocate in general terms the stabilization of currencies, and to turn some sort of commission whose recommendations would be practically useless without particular reference to a less obstructed system of international exchange of goods and services.

Following the talk, Tom Scott, '36, of Oklahoma, sang three solos, which included a cowboy and English hunting-song. The evening was concluded with a supper.
