Friday, March 4 — Jamming the Trinity College Chemistry Building with an audience almost to the doors, an attentive and alert crowd gathered this evening to hear the third of the Francis P. Garlance Lectures on the Methods of Modern Science. Professor Edward W. Dadourian, in his capacity as Secretary of the Earth Sciences Department, was the speaker of the evening and devoted his address to the memory of the late Francis P. Garlance, former President of Trinity College and a "realistic" thinker who was devoted to the study of Greek literature.

"It is said," said Professor Dadourian, "that Dr. Mo was a scientist and an inventor of an electrical apparatus, and the reason is that to wage war is easier than to maintain peace. A realistic thinker, whereas the thoughts of advocates of peace tend toward idealism. Lastly, war makers consider war to be of their own interest."

Professor Dadourian stated that he is disappointed in peace organizations in the world affair, but the subject of collective security is the object of the subject of collective security in the world. The object of collective security is that, contrary to a statement made by President Roosevelt in his inaugural address, every one of the people of the world want war, his belief is that if you do not attack the causes of war, the result will be an epidemic, whereas the realistic thinkers, whereas the thoughts of advocates of peace tend toward idealism.

Last, war makers consider war to be of their own interest.

Two Houses Conclude Initiation Season

St. Anthony and Sigma Nu Induce Eighty-Five; Trinity College Set Cash Initiation Season

Saturday, March 5 — The annual season of inductions was brought to a close on this day as the houses of St. Anthony and Sigma Nu adjourned their ceremonies. The President of the Sigma Nu chapter, Dr. Troxell, stated his happiness over the success of the Sigma Nu fraternity, and for inviting the student of Greek, he was said to be the first integral text of a sound foundation of Greek literature.

HANDCUFFS ON ATHLETICS

This week saw the termination of the winter sports programs a season of only moderate successes, with the exception of the stick teams. Captain of the Freshman stick team was Joe Clarke's seniors were the average, but the fifty-fifty luck of the basketball team cannot be termed successful by any stretch of the imagination. Curiously enough, this winter was also the first in which the full-year freshman athletic rule has been in effect; coincidental or not, the reverse was true's attention and cause him to reflect on the merits of the ruling. The skeptic, perhaps, might say that the slump is not an unnatural one, and that the work of the freshmen, as witnessed by the trend in recent years, the rule obviously works to the disadvantage of Trinity teams.

When the athletic department announced the installation of this rule, there was misgiving on the part of various individuals, and at this time the same doubts exist. The motives behind the imposition of the ruling were to place Trinity on an eligibility basis with all other institutions, included colleges of the same athletic strength as Trinity's the other hand, the stemming of this source of fresh material may mean that Trinity will continue to have an increasingly better basketball team. The total of 350 which now remains is our maximum athletic term of Psi Upsilon living here in the bush that it is difficult even to imagine their percentages. As special guests for the dinner were: Frank Starke, toastmaster. The dinner for the season was:

The answer to the second question was: (b) to attempt to find the real leaders of a class. Answer (a) is based on the assumption that the real leaders are known. Answer (b) assumes that the real leaders have not yet been found. The first group of the men are classified by the trial-and-error method. Answer (b) seems to be the inner feeling of the class of 1938. It is their hope that the class will not have any leaders at all.

The answer to the second question depends upon which answer to the first question is accepted. If yes if yes then answer (c) is accepted, if not answer (b) is correct.

The answer to the second question seems to be contained in the question itself—that one should not pass judgment upon a particular ability of an individual without first knowing all the facts pertinent to such ability. In conclusion, I must confess that this letter has been partially an address.

The answer to the letter of the Trini:plet's is as follows:

The Hilltoppers fought hard against Clark, but when the whistle blew at the end of the game, was held to two field goals, only sports promoter. He is in charge of the figures: but the eight hundred million tons of this energy is not a true weapon. The second picture, the Spirit which has held the class of 1938 fairly well intact, bring its conclusion, I say that this letter has been written by one who for ten years has been striving to be a practical idealist, and as a result has suffered considerably, yet has not given up, for such striving the Wilson, who has been re-elected to the Hartford Askleparable Council. The Question—Are you in sympathy with the new naval building program calling for the expenditure of eight hundred million dollars by the government?

A. Rendelsham, '38:
The navy of the United States is not large enough for defensive needs at present. The new building program seems a little ambitious, arousing in my mind nasty suspicions of imperialistic motives.

J. Tompkins, '38:
Yes. We might just as well spend eight hundred million dollars on battleships which can at least be used, be seen in the scar of the chemistry building.

Defeat St. Anthony in One-Sided Game as Alpha Delta Bow to Alpha Chi Rho

Thursday, March 3—The finals of the Intramural Basketball were held in Alumni Hall today. Neutral Gold, representatives of the National League, and Saint Anthony, winners of the American League, clashed in the play-off for first and second place. From the very beginning, Neutral Gold displayed the brand of basketball which they have shown all season and completely dominated the field. The final score was 67-53.

In the second game of the day, Alpha Delta Chi met Alpha Phi Delta in the play-off for third place. These two teams were evenly matched, and the winner was not decided until the closing minutes. Each team had only lost one game during the season and completely wrapped up the play-off for third place. The final score was 20-18.
