Blue and gold frosh trip middletonites

Late rally in the eighth frame enables Trinity freshmen to win by 7-6 score

Wednesday, May 24—An eighth-inning rally, which the frosh middletonites had worked very hard to throw away enabled the Trinity freshmen to win a very close game over the sophomores on Wednesday afternoon.

The frosh middletonites got off to a good start, scoring four runs in their first time at bat, aided by one hit and five error tricks. After this the Blue and Gold team settled down and managed to put two runs across the plate in the third inning as the result of a single by Thelen, a double by MacDonald, who scored Thelen, and a single by Viering, scoring MacDonald. With the game even 6-2, the Blue and Gold team was able to come back in the eighth inning and by a score of 11-8, win the game.

The Blue and Gold starting pitcher, who did not have much experience, by the way, pitched a very fine game and was well supported by his team, which scored in the eighth by knocking across five runs and tying the game.

In the eighth frame, the Blue and Gold team scored two runs, one on base, when Kelly and Shelly popped out. Harris to second, but both men died there.

Interview with Undergraduate Reveals

Personal Opinions and Private Affairs

By Lee Goodman, '41

The following is an accurate account of an undergraduate's state of mind, which is truthfully and candidly recorded. For obvious reasons, his name is not disclosed. His description and the summation is the author's, as well as other comments, are given to condone the subject's own. He is anonymously named "Bud." When Bud was approached for an interview, he said he was writing a letter. He suggested, then, that since I was not related, that his letter would best express his views of the matter. For this reason he approached on that subject first, in order to make him responsive and informal. He was writing to Kate, his "O. & O." (one and only). Kate was eighteen; a freshman in college. She had a good sense of humor, could dance well, swing, adored "The Seven Dials" and wanted, above all else, for him to understand her. "One of the reasons," he said, "is that I don't want to go out. I haven't been out much. I'm too busy."

Bud's mother, who had been a school teacher, loved him. They had a "wonderful understanding" (whatever that means), and some day hoped to be married. Kate's only faults were that she cheated on exams, wanted to go out, and didn't want to be bothered with school. She also said she was "looking for a girl who is just like me." Bud's mother also felt that she was too wishful in her studies for a degree, and was not sure of her future. They had a "wonderful understanding" (whatever that means), and some day hoped to be married.

"When a girl accepts the serious offers of a fellow, she ought to be willing and cooperative in trying to smooth out differences, and entitled that by going out with others she is pleasing herself, and not bud. She said she had been approached by one, and felt that it was not fair to her, and that she had been approached by one who was not willing to go out with her. She also felt that she was too wishful in her studies for a degree, and was not sure of her future. They had a "wonderful understanding" (whatever that means), and some day hoped to be married.

Interrogated about the future, she said she was too wishful in her studies for a degree, and was not sure of her future. They had a "wonderful understanding" (whatever that means), and some day hoped to be married.

the real meaning of the word. Thus some locus is painted in with a notion of the universe as a scene that is warm, rich, plentiful, and stirring. To animate the scene, a new and exciting pattern is scribed with a sense of humor that, throughout the book, is subdued to a sense of the ridiculous.

As an example, "Orthodoxy is of course a good and necessary thing, but because it provides a proper background for heretics, I do not believe in it," in a sympathetic study of that always fascinating subject, the Indian. Moreover, Professor Shepard's description of their pride, tradition, and cunning suggests that communal ownership and responsibility for land that was theirs by custom is a part of the Indian's concept of ownership — of a very different sort from that of the European. The contrast makes the Englishman's savagery seem

TUFTS' TRACK MEET

The 100-yard sprint was taken in thrilling style by Dugger who nipped Ryan for the first place. He set back a yard for false starting in the 100, led Dugger most of the time in the 220, but was unable to pass him at the finish, as Dugger won by a comfortable margin in the 440 yards. In the mile Aikins repeated with a triumph over Jim Cafery of Trinity when he negotiated the distance in the fair time of 4 minutes 29.5 seconds.

One of the highlights of the track season was the sprint duel between Dugger and Cairney, which was over a 22.3 clocking. Dugger con-

In the singles matches the Trinity team won twice when Parsons de­feated Barrows of Wesleyan and Colon defeated Fraser of Wesleyan. In the doubles matches, the Blue and Gold men took one out of three, when Robohowsky and Bates of Trinity de­feated Green and Eisendradt of Wes­leyan. The hardy fought second set of the afternoon came when Frazer and Clarkesen of Wesleyan defeated Col­lin and Taylor of Trinity, 6-3, 6-4.

FRESHMAN MATCHES

The Trinity freshman tennis team played its final match of the season when it lost to the Wesleyan freshmen by the score of 5-4, on Wednesday afternoon, but same back on Tuesday when it defeated Suffield.

Both matches were played away, the Wednesday one being played at Suffield, the Saturday one on the Suffield courts.

Chapel services of the third and last day of Holy Communion will be conducted by Clarence B. Ball, class of '82. At eleven o'clock there will be a dedication of the Blue and Gold netmen.

Such a day will be of a patriotic nature and have people talk about a winning team which has won its last three games.

COMMENTS

To the Editor of the Triphop:

Now that the Trinity baseball season is over, it seems to me that we should pause and consider why the team has not had a better year than anticipated.

We all know that there are off years for any ball team—you even have the Yanks once in a while do not win the pennant. All those who have been followers of Jesuits’ athletics for the past year realize that the aggregation was composed largely of green men. And, then too, Dan and Bob are not the only ones who have played every man on the team an opportunity to act as pitcher, after Morris hurt his arm.

Lastly, the cool rainy weather during the short presea­son left the boys with little seasoning when they went into their first game. Surely these are reasons enough in addition to the fact that we have no more than a mediocre season.

You probably say that the other team has some of the same difficulties, but let us stop and think. In the first place, for the last several years most of the teams of the state have faced Trinity at the beginning of the year have bearings for South with a week or so by playing the college teams down there. The weather is much warmer generally, and the players are played almost every day, usually against different teams. The coaches of the several teams have the major league managers, those few days of practice make all the difference in the world. When the season starts the boys are ready for action and they are not disheartened by losing the first game or so. I say, let’s give Dan and Bob an other chance to play their game, and you’re going to have a good team. Starters will have to pay for itse l f, so why not give it a try in order to have a winning season.
