Trinity Radio Committee Broadcasts

- Extensive Book Review Program Friday, February 26

- Friday’s broadcast, the Trinity College Radio Program presented its monthly feature, “Books and Authors,” taking up two types of war books. One concerns itself directly with the war, and the other with problems after the war.

- The first book discussed, “Let the People Know,” by Norman Angell, deals with problems that will face us after the war. It answers questions such as why we are fighting and what kind of a peace we want to win after the war.

- The second book reviewed is “The Parable of the Good Samaritan,” written by Professor Hans W. Weigert. This book analyzes motives of three different characters as applied to present time.

- The Parable of the Good Samaritan served as the topic for the last Wednesday evening’s Chapel service address. The Rev. W. Brooke Stabler of Aven Old Farms used this parable as an example of the nobility of the man who does not suffer his fellows but assists them. He presents the point that a man must be unselfish, loving, and brave to live a good life.

- Professor Hans W. Weigert’s recent book, “The Parable of the Good Samaritan,” was the topic this week because of its significance in the current war effort. It illustrates how the principles of the Good Samaritan can be applied to modern problems.

RACE DISCRIMINATION

To the Editor:

The United States faces a great many problems in connection with her war efforts; not the least of these is the fact that the wide spread of the number of citizens from different racial strains. The problem is a great deal more acute now than it was a decade ago. It outwardly appears. It is a problem that has had many years of struggle behind it, more than a century, but today it seems to hold, perhaps, the destiny of the country in its grasp.

No one will deny that a racial problem exists in America. Again, every- one will be willing to admit that racial prejudice, at some time, and in some degree, has hurt to the core, the boys dashed off to drown their sorrow in the near by brook. How many thousands of the boys, during the war, were trained to discriminate between colored and white, to think that a colored man is inferior to a white man, to refuse to associate themselves with a colored man, to discrimi- nate against him, in almost every way and for almost every reason. This was a problem that, today, would be a great deal more acute than it is, if the government were not doing so much arguing for the immediate solution of the problem. It is a problem that needs the whole government's attention, in order to be solved. It is a problem that needs to be solved, if the country is to go on to victory in the war.

The problem of the Negro is a problem that needs the whole government's attention, in order to be solved. It is a problem that needs to be solved, if the country is to go on to victory in the war.

The Negro, as a race, is probably more out of place in the wrong house, than the Whites are in the right house. The Negro is a real problem, as a race, in the United States, and until he is treated as such, the United States will not be able to go on to victory in the war.

The first call for baseball candidates has been issued and those interested in the national pastime are urged to attend the organization meeting Tuesday, March 2, at 5 p.m., in Alumni Hall. Coach Jessee will be on hand to handle the meeting and quite a number of students plan to be on hand. There is no definite word on the status of baseball this year, but in all likelihood, it will be on an informal basis much as varsity basketball has been. Several schools with whom games have been scheduled have definitely called off their baseball programs, thereby leaving quite a few unscheduled games. As it is, all contests will have to be played in April as close as April 21. Those returning from last year's successful nine include Charlie Foster, Alex Dahovick and Mush Gilliat. Several newcomers are on hand and they are Norm Finkle, Manley Goodspeed, Bob Wilson, Jim Cunningham, Allie Resony, Bob Morin and Joe Molinari. Battery candidates will probably start working out this week.

Joe Clark, assistant director of physical education and swimming coach, assisted by numerous students, will give an exhibition of military swimming Saturday, March 6, in Trowbridge Memorial Pool. Some of the students helping out are as follows: Stark Taylor, Stu Bartholmew, Bill Carothers, Walter German, Konnie Mah, Charlie Penlar and Bill Weaver. Many of the demonstrations will be new to most people, as they are products of the comparatively recent technique of saving oneself from a fiery death at sea. Swimming under burning oil, swimming with a heavy pack on one's back, swimming fully clothed and dozens of other similarly interesting events will be demonstrated. The exhibition will get under way about two-thirty and all are cordially invited to attend.

Good news has reached yours truly regarding one of the revolted fellows ever to hit Trinity College. It is about none other than Ralph Erickson, varsity basketball coach, and assistant football coach. Ralph, or Lieutenant Erickson as he is properly titled, left Trinity last year to accept a commission under an old friend and classmate who attended Springfield College with him. The friend happened to be in charge of the whole physical training program at Atlantic City and when he was forced to take a rest after a rather strenuous period, it was Ralph who was assigned to the job of continuing the program. The program calls for the physical training of about 30,000 sailors - no small or easy task. Since the assignment usually calls for the rank of Major, it is to be assumed that in the near future we will hear of Lieutenant Erickson's promotion. If anybody deserves it, it is Ralph. He was certainly one of the best liked faculty members while at Trinity and his coaching ability was never in doubt. He was always willing to kid and have a good time, but when he wanted to get down to business, he commanded plenty of respect. Ralph used to take quite a beating about his

Colleges to Set Standards
The contract with the college will insure it a definite number of men. The college will be required to accept men ordered to it for training. At the same time the college will maintain high standards of selectivity in instruction and examination and recommend transfer to other active duty those students who fail to meet requirements. Colleges may or may not, at their own discretion give regular academic credit for courses prescribed by the Navy Department.

The Bureau of Naval Personnel will prescribe the curricula necessary to insure production of officer material for the various branches of the naval service, including aviation cadets, engineer and deck officers, engineer specialists, medical and dental officers, supply corps officers and chaplains. Curricula will vary in length to fit training requirements.

The length of course for chaplains, medical and dental officers will be twelve sixteen-week terms; engineer specialists, eight sixteen-week terms; engineers for general duty, six sixteen-week terms; deck and marine line officers, four sixteen-week terms, and aviators, two sixteen-week terms.
