EXAMINATIONS

To meet Trinity's and its own standards no man or another term of college work has been looked forward to with as much interest or as much dread.

The students are aware that not only have they to do at least as well as last year, they are expected to do better. Students having a hard time are not happy with the prospect that if they take exams they will have to face again. However, the exams are not to be taken lightly. They are an important part of the college's academic program and are designed to test the students' knowledge and understanding of the material they have studied.

The individual who is required to write the exam is expected to do their best to prepare for it. This may involve reviewing notes, reading textbooks, and practicing past exams. The individual is also expected to show up on time to take the exam and to adhere to the exam rules and regulations.

The exams are typically held in a quiet room and are proctored by faculty members. Students are not allowed to bring books, notes, or electronic devices into the exam room.

The individual who is required to write the exam is expected to do their best to perform well on it. This may involve thinking critically, applying knowledge, and demonstrating understanding of the material.

The exams are typically graded by faculty members and are used to evaluate students' performance in the course. The grades obtained from exams are used to determine a student's final grade in the course.

The exam is an important part of the college's academic program and is designed to test the students' knowledge and understanding of the material they have studied. It is important for students to take the exam seriously and to perform their best in order to achieve a good grade.
