Radcliffe Chorus Joins in Tri-For Better Vision in Chapel

Woodworth Conducts; Watters Accompanies

In commemoration of the 200th anniversary of the death of Johann Sebastian Bach (1685-1750), the combined choirs of Radcliffe and Trin-ity College presented last Friday evening a finished performance of several of this great composer's works. The program, held very ap-proved by the students and public, was the beginning of a series of all-college recitals which will be given at the colleges during the next three months.

Conducted by G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard and Radcliffe choral groups, and accompa-nied by organ under Professor Clarence Watters of Trinity, the concert opened with an excerpt from the St. John Passion, followed by a sonata from the Cantata "Watch Ye, For Behold the Bridegroom Cometh." The program was presented in the chapel of the Connecticut Avenue residence of Mrs. Henry W. Davenport of Hartford.

The second part of the program was a series of pieces played upon the harpsichord by Daniel Pinkham, harpsichordist at Trinity. He played the well-known Prelude, which was "Well Tempered Clavier," clavier, six little preludes and the Adagio in G Major.

In the evening was an in­pressive performance of Bach's "Mag-nificat," in which the combined choir and accompanied by both organ and harpsichord. Solists in this work were Katherine Griffith, soprano; Rad­cliffe, Ruth Avery Ray, alto, and Harold, Beatrice baritone, and Mrs. Looke. The well-trained choir of one hun-dred voices sweated the building with the music of the great Mannheim, the Blessed Virgin.

A 1940 graduate of the orchestra played by George Hochek and Scott Billings, echoed through the high vaulted chapel ceiling and crowd of well over 600 filled every pew.

Plumb Says Art Club Exhibit Better Than Last Year; Reactions Varied

By O. T. Plumb, '52

Last week's art exhibit, sponsored and managed by the Trinity Art Club and advised by the Art Department, was apparently not as well received as last year's. Whitney had been gratifying to see the large number of art lovers who turned out to view the efforts of the club. It would have been interesting, however, to observe the number interested if the show had not been held in Cook Lounge within convenient proximity to the dining hall.

Although some of the contributors to the exhibit were not members of the Art Club, all were Trinity stu-dents, and representation was from the various schools in the college. Last year's exhibit, the variety of material, the presentation, and the spirit with which students participated was much better this year. However, with more effective publicity before and during the show it is believed that a better exhibit could be produced.

The show which was the most impressive, the work of the follow­ing artists were exhibited: George Wil-liam's painting of "Concord Greenwoood," Dudley Rickford, Walter Davis, Don Wright, Robert Elam, Stanley Dukas, Gerald H. O'Connell, Howard D. Stitham, Fred-erick Woodworth, and John de Ferranti. Plumb, John B. Bird, and Gus Stefan.

Such exhibits as this not only pro­vide a means of bringing the students' creative efforts out to the public but also add a touch of freshness to our every day activities at Trinity. It is hoped that future art shows will be many and well-supported.

Phi Beta Kappa Chooses Ten For Scholastic Distinction

May Initiation Set For Newly-Named Men

Betas of Connecticut of Phi Beta Kappa has announced the election of ten Trinity students. The initiation of these men into the Fraternity will take place in May.

Robert W. Barrows, '56, is a B.S. student. While at Loeb he played football, basketball, and base­ball, and he is also a member of the squash and tennis teams. Bob is also a member of the Medina and is a veteran of the B.A. of Trinity. Thomas A. Carlsten, '56, is a B.S. student. While at Loeb he was a member of the tennis and baseball teams.

He entered Trinity in 1943 but a two-year stretch in the army interrupted his college course.

Nicholas A. Galanos, who came to Trinity last year, has been active on Campus. He went up for swimming and soccer and is a member of the Alpha Chi. His role in the Fraternity is as a future Phi Beta. Charles, 1943 at Loeb, had a long and active term as the former secretary of the Alpha Chi chapter.

Philip A. Kusnitz, '53, President of the Pre-Medical Club, and Leo L. Maza,z, '51, a history major, were the form­er secretaries of the Alpha Chi chapter.

Two Connecticut men, both of whom are members of the Phi Beta Kappa Fraternity, are both B.S. students and veterans.

Varsity Club Backs All-College Smoker Fri. in Hamlin Hall

Taking its cue from the popularity of last Saturday night smoker held earlier this year, the Varsity Club will sponsor an all-college Beer Stag this Friday evening in Hamlin Hall. The Club will provide an in­clusive supply of beer, cider, and doughnuts. Admission will be free.

In the way of entertainment, the "T" Club has invited the two college orchestras, the Pipes and the Bishop's Band, to play. There will be a talent show open to all comers, and some announcements to facilitate a 25 prize for the best performances.

The Campus Joke Book (E. H. noted the preparation of the infam­ous "Brownlow Dodgers zym-phony") will again be on hand. It should be noted that this is not a closed group; all jazz enthusiasts and their instru­ments will be welcome additions to this harmonious evening.

Trinity Ski Team Wins Inter-Collegiate Meet

Representatives from Bay Path College, Trinity, and Amherst College to compete in the University of Massachusetts, where the Winter Sports were participated in a successful ski meet, the Hacker's Hollow, held on the Tobacco campus, on Saturday, February 26.

According to the record, the ski team showed Trinity to be the victor with Mount Holyoke second, followed by Amherst, Springfield, Smith, and the University of Massachusetts, respectively.

The team was scored by John Trousdale in 29 minutes over the course of men.

Of those present for the meet stayed on during the remainder of the day to catch the facilities of the Tinker slope and tow.

The ski meet was donated by John Trousdale in 29 minutes over the course of men.

Football, Baseball Movies to be Shown

Dr. Jessoe, head football and baseball coach, has announced that free sports movies will be shown at the Coliseum at 8 o'clock in the College Auditorium.

Included in the show will be football and baseball, which features the pre-professional football games, one from the Crimson and one from the other between the Yanks and the Braves, and the 1949 season, which will be shown in the Coliseum.

Since these sports films are the property of the athletic department, the students of the varsity clubs, and not to the student body, it is urged that Trinity men take advantage of these sound movies and make Thursday an evening of film enjoyment.
A Word In Edgewise

By Leondell Mitchell

The New York Times last Wednesday reported the National assembly of France has passed a bill forbidding the sale of Coca-cola in France. While this may have come as something of a shock to the average American, those of us with a vital interest in world affairs saw the signs of this in the Canard Enchaîné, a French weekly found from time to time in the library. The canard, as a matter of fact, was not the only one to mention the subject. Two or three days after it was released, it was with no serious improvement. Now there seems to be a tone, though I do not think that the classes and the first examination might be made for the benefit of the class and the second examination will be for the benefit of the professors who otherwise might have only one evening to make up for it.

To the Editor:

Dear Teacher,

I am writing to you in the recent issue of the Tripod and Dean Hughes’ reply. I am alarmed to have a hand in the discussion of the proposed “reading period.” I find that this practice must have originated in France, for there they read for examinations, but I am sure that this plan may work in Oxford or Cambridge, but when we try it at Trinity, probably before Mr. Hughes’ time, it was a failure because only a few students took advantage of the four or five days allowed. The rest calmly beat it for home or “Times Square” as Dean suggests, and did not appear to have benefited scholastically from their “sociological research.” Later the period was cut to two or three days, as I recall it, with no obvious improvement. Now there seems to be a tone, though I do not think that the class can be made up for the benefit of the class and the second examination will be for the benefit of the professors who otherwise might have only one evening to make up for it.

Someone who reads this may agree that if there is to be no reading period, at least the instructor should consider the students who will be required to read the material. I presume, and may get good results, but when I tried it myself, early in the semester, I discovered that I was almost the only one who did the reviewing, and the class as a whole expected me to give away pointers on the coming examination. If I had discussed topics not later found on the paper, my class could have felt much neglected for the misleading student. I wouldn’t do it again.

The most necessary method of reviewing a course is the seminar, where the students bring their difficulties and the instructor does his best to help them overcome, regardless of whether they are in the exam or not. The chief difficulty with this plan when I last used it during the V.C. era was that the students were expected to do the initial work, and I find that it is just as necessary to me to make that change.

It occurs to me that if Trinity should emulate Oxford and Cambridge and institute a “Reviewing Club,” a good subject for the first session would be abolition of examinations and awarding a grade to everyone who had spent an hour in the class on the ground that such distinctions as degrees are undemocratic and therefore un-American. Yours truly,

Henry A. Perkins.

Viva Luigi

“Louis” Naylor has been on the faculty of Trinity since 1925. Last Thursday when President Fenston announced he was going to New York, and the students who bring their difficulties and the instructor does his best to help them overcome, regardless of whether they are in the exam or not. The chief difficulty with this plan when I last used it during the V.C. era was that the students were expected to do the initial work, and I find that it is just as necessary to me to make that change.

It occurs to me that if Trinity should emulate Oxford and Cambridge and institute a “Reviewing Club,” a good subject for the first session would be abolition of examinations and awarding a grade to everyone who had spent an hour in the class on the ground that such distinctions as degrees are undemocratic and therefore un-American. Yours truly,

Henry A. Perkins.

John Butler of the Placement Office has asked us to announce that an additional lecture has been planned for the Career Counseling series. Maria Joseph Ponzelle, '40, will give a talk on the subject: “A Recent Graduate’s Experiences With the Civil Service.” We are sure that this lecture will be a valuable addendum to the series and hope that all of the students will turn out to hear Joe, who has achieved some notoriety since his graduation from Trinity last year. (Of course, we are really interested in whether he passed that damned test or not.)

The new generation has to fight the old generation for the top spots in the world, and the old generation has to fight the new generation for the top spots in the world. The old generation has to fight the new generation for the top spots in the world. The old generation has to fight the new generation for the top spots in the world. Victory Record Reaches 13
As Team Takes Two on Road

By Jim D. Spears

An out-of-the-ordinary victory for the University of Connecticut basketball team was achieved last Sunday, when the team beat the University of New York, 75-55, in the first game of the New York Invitational Tournament. The victory was particularly significant because it marked the first time that the University of Connecticut had won a game against a team from the Eastern Conference.

The game was a great display of skill and teamwork by the University of Connecticut players. The team was led by the outstanding performance of the University of Connecticut's star player, Bill Greenland, who scored a total of 35 points in the game. The University of Connecticut also received solid contributions from several other players, including Bob Johnson, who scored 20 points, and Larry Martin, who contributed 15 points.

The University of Connecticut's defense was also a key factor in the victory. The team held the University of New York to only 55 points, despite the fact that the University of New York had been averaging 80 points per game.

The victory was a great boost for the University of Connecticut, which had been struggling in recent games. The team now stands at 15-5 for the season, and has a good chance of making the NCAA tournament.

The University of Connecticut will continue its tournament play this week, with games against the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Columbia. A victory in these games will solidify the University of Connecticut's position in the national rankings.

Frost Win Four Games in Hectic Week
Wes, Cheshire Fall Prey to Boothmen

By Joe Wollenberg

On Tuesday, February 28, the froshtmen encountered the Weslyan Fleish who had previously whipped Trinity Jay, 60-52, with two points. As the game began, Wally Novak and Bruno Chistini started to hit and Trinity immediately went out in front by 18 points. In the first 15 minutes of the game, the Blue and Gold remained on top, 12-point margin at the half. From then on it was all ball game.

In the second half the Blue and Gold opened up their lead to 20 points, by Bob Jachens who scored 12 points. The second half was dominated by the Bantams, whose defense held the Trinmen to only 8 points.

The final score was Trinity 65, Weslyan 35.

The following Thursday, the froshtmen engaged the Cheshire Academy team. As the game got under way, it was an entirely different story. Paced by Wally Novak, the Blue and Gold scored 14 points in the opening minutes of the first half. The Bantams were able to score only 8 points in the first half.

In the second half, Trinity's defense held the Cheshire Academy team scoreless for the first 10 minutes of the game. The Blue and Gold scored 16 points in the second half, and the final score was Trinity 33, Cheshire Academy 8.

The victory was a great boost for the Blue and Gold, who are now in second place in the Eastern Conference.

Carmel for Mildness

By Gregory Knapp

The Carmel for Mildness is a new book that has been written by Dr. John H. Carr, a world-renowned expert on smoking. The book is a comprehensive guide to the science of smoking and the effects of tobacco on the human body.

Dr. Carr has written the book in a clear and easy-to-understand manner. He covers topics such as the biology of smoking, the effects of smoking on the body, and the history of smoking.

The book is divided into several chapters, each of which covers a different aspect of smoking. The first chapter covers the biology of smoking, and discusses the effects of nicotine on the body. The second chapter covers the effects of smoking on the lungs, and the third chapter covers the effects of smoking on the heart.

The book is highly recommended for anyone who wants to learn more about smoking and its effects. It is a must-read for anyone who is thinking about quitting smoking.
