CALL FOR RE-EVALUATION

Last week, the faults of the present Senatorial system were delineated in three columns of the Chronicle. A motion and little support for a motion to take the entire column to expand the flaws in our rather aptly named student government. This week, we examine the Senatorial system and find it to be not too onerous, as considered. Rather, we present several problems to the student body and let the Senate choose their own method. The most important, and the most pressing, is that of the degree to which it is changed.

Information and clarification, including those of students, were submitted. (Continued on page 6)

Avon Show Game - All Tufts Best Fund For Goralski

Avon's Show Game, which is to be held on April 25, will be the big fund raiser for the Goralski family.

Special Goralski Feature Will Appear Next Week

What is the latest news on Bill Goralski's condition? What progress is being made on his road to recovery? What's the latest from his doctors? These are some of the leading questions on Trinity's injured football player which will be answered in a special feature story in next week's edition of The Tripod. Be sure to read it.

Aken Announces Opening of New PBK Members to Be Initiated Tomorrow

The new members of PBK will be initiated into the fraternity on Tuesday, March 19, 1952, at 7:30 p.m. in the Chemistry Auditorium.

Goal Set For Blood Drive Here Tomorrow

Two hundred and sixty-five pins is the goal set for Trinity in the Blood Donation Race between Trinity and its sister schools.

If this goal is realized, Trinity will top the small college record of 208 set by Wesleyan last year. Dean Clarke has scheduled the men who have signed that they wish to donate blood between the hours of 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. tomorrow. Cards can also be issued to those men with the specified time and a suggested diet printed on the other side.

Special Feature NEXT WEEK

Frost Pledge 125

The blood center will be located in Alumni Hall, as before, and those who have set as yet unvolunteered their blood are urged by the committee to do so. The freshman class has already pledged 225 pins, as compared with the 70 pins they donated in October. Upperclass pledges were made a few weeks ago by representatives in each fraternity.

Blood to Korea

To ensure a smooth operation, Supt. Croshaw of the Agency for International Understanding was brought to the Hartford Blood Center at Pearl and Trump Street. Organizations like the American Legion, and fraternities had similar campaigns last year for blood.

Tuft Alpha's Petition To Phi Gamma Renued

Tuft Alpha's second petition to the Phi Gamma Delta Fishbowl has turned up arguments for and against on the Permanent Chariters. The following reasons were given: Phi Gamma Delta does not want to give funds to Eng- land as they already have nine chap- ters there; there are risks involved in entering any new national liberal arts colleges.

The members of the Permanent Committee who visited Trin- ity this week had high respect for the college and Tau Alpha Fraternity. They also suggested that in the event the other members of the committee did not share his feelings on Tau Alpha's petition, and the petition was turned down, that Tau Alpha should seek some other national affiliation.

The local was at a formu- lated stage, and that its entrance into any national fraternity would be accompanied by the enthusiasm that is usually found only in new or- ganizations.

TA established in 1945

Tau Alpha was founded in 1945, March 19, by alumni groups from former Theta Chi chapters. In 1950, Delta and Alpha Tau Kappa, and has made rapid strides in the region. In 1950, it moved into 411 South Main Street, in the Chemistry Auditorium until the summer of 1951, the house was remodel- ed and ready for occupancy in the fall. The group petitioned Phi Gamma Delta in the summer of 1950, but due to a requirement that a frater- nity had to be in existence for three years before its petition would be considered.

The office has also reported that the newspaper has grown in size and circulation. The Chronicle is now the only student newspaper in the Northeast.

The regulations include a five-dollar fine for non-registration of cars with the police, a ten-dollar fine for driving on campus with an unregistered car, a twenty-five-dollar fine for parking on the campus without a permit, and a one-dollar fine for parking in restricted areas. The Senate has requested that students and faculty be notified of the rules and regulations, and that the bulletin board be used for further information and clarification.

New PBK Members To Be Initiated Tomorrow

As we know, the initiation of the eight newly-elected Phi Beta Kappa members has been a subject of lively discussion. Dr. Frank Aylottie will speak at a public lecture in the Chemistry Auditorium on the history of Phi Beta Kappa and some of its significant contributions. Dr. Aylottie, former president of Smith College, is a graduate of Indiana University and Harvard, and he studied for two years at Oxford while on a Rhodes Scholarship.

In his long career as a teacher and scholar, Dr. Aylottie has written three books, edited several more, and has been a frequent contributor to national magazines. He has written many articles on English literature, education, and public affairs.

Rhodes Scholar Prey From 1949 to 1951, Dr. Aylottie was Director of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, and he is currently in research there. Since 1950 Dr. Aylottie has been president of Smith College, and as Rhodes Scholar, a group he has been actively interested in. He is a native of Indiana, and a Rhodes Scholar of the first class. Aylottie will be guest at the initiation dinner, and Dr. Aylottie will be guest at the dinner.

Eight Get Keys

The eight new members, who will be accorded the coveted key when a college is marked by outstanding public opinion, are: Lawrence Barrett, Benjamin Goodwin, Gregory Knap, David L. Osgood, George A. Wheeler, Walter Speeparus, Kenneth Thomas, and John Younger.

The Trinity chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, which was established in 1936, giving Trinity the distinction of having the oldest chapter in the country, has a membership of 1000. In 1936, William and Mary College in Virginia was the first to be chartered.

Knollenberg Gives Washington Lecture

As we know, Knollenberg is a member of the American Chemical Society and has contributed a number of papers to the society. His lecture at the library was well attended and was followed by a discussion of the chemistry of the atom and its role in the future of the nation.

William Lewis, Vice-chairman of the American Chemical Society and a noted Walsip scholar, introduced Dr. Knollenberg to the audience.

Mr. W. L. Lewis, Vice-chairman of the American Chemical Society and a noted Walsip scholar, introduced Dr. Knollenberg to the audience.

Knoellenberg gave a lecture on Washington's earlier biographers and their role in shaping his image. He said that Washington's earlier biographers did little research into his life in a saint-like manner. Later authors who did more careful research on his life, such as Charles Willson Peale, were more realistic in their portrayals of Washington, despite his human failings, but in doing so they also did not do justice to the greatness of our country's father.

Akin Announces Opening of New PBK Members to Be Initiated Tomorrow

The new PBK members will be initiated today at 7:30 p.m. in the Chemistry Auditorium.

Starting with a kick-off in the Chemistry Auditorium on Monday, March 25, and running through April 30, the campaign will reach every student at college, as well as all instructors, through a group of professional representatives personally contacting each man. The campaign is for community and campus students and members of the community. All on-campus independents will be contacted by Joe W slightly.

There are twelve charities which are to benefit from the drive, the primary being student organizations on campus and in foreign countries.

Call for Re-evaluation (1)

body elect the president who is the senator.

The Senate President is, according to the Senate Constitution, also considered the president of the student body. Yet this man is elected by only two or three clubs in representing the campus as their chairman and leader. If a man is to be head of a body of 6,000, he must be elected by that body and not by unrepresentative representatives of it. Moreover, a popular but uneducated senator would probably stimulate the candidates to present definite platforms, thus taking away the stigma of "popularity contest" attached to many campus elections today.

We come now to the second system of reform. As employed at Williams and several other colleges in varying degrees, it involves the standard representatives from each fraternity plus a good representation for the socials. (Glee for Wickersham, the Green, the Field Club) and one or two men from a kind of student activities council made up of the business managers or heads of the various campus organizations. Thus the non-fraternity men get a fair proportionate to their number, and the organizations whose appropriations are one of the principal concerns of the legislative body, have the power of vetoing in their government.

But we must decide whether we are merely to patch up the holes and rotten places in our House of Student Government or whether we can take the time to tear down the old structure completely and in its place construct a new, modern and basically sound institution.

If we are to do the latter, we must put aside the "kindred spirit" idea and begin on a new principle of representing the college and having the best interests of the college uppermost in their minds. We must consider the proposal made by Dick Simeon for Doug Lee, who would have the Senate made up of Senators elected by the entire student body, or the somewhat similar idea of club representatives on a graduated scale, i.e., one man for freshmen, five for seniors. (Instead of the system at Amherst and Hamilton.)

Under both of these proposals, the Senate, or Student Council as it might be more aptly called, should be elected, not adopted, attract better men. It is generally acknowledged that in some years a house may have two or three of men of top-notch ability, and another year it may have no man worthy to be Senator. Senates in past years have suffered because there has been a few members every year who were "deadwood," while there were other seniors who would have made excellent representatives but who were not chosen, perhaps because either in their organization was just as capable.

Furthermore, the argument which we have heard around campus has been that the house which might not have a representative would feel left out. Nonsense! The Senators would be representing the campus, NOT the houses, and the sooner the students of Trinity become less fraternity-conscious, and more comparatively the better will Trinity students become in the eyes of their faculty, their brother colleges and sub-freshmen.

Another consideration in the past there have been some outstanding neutrals who felt it useless to run for the Senate because it was fraternity-dominated. Should we open the Senate to the campus, neutrals who could offer positive programs would feel less repressed about becoming representatives.

The election as we now have it is rather farcical. A house puts up two men, probably good friends, and the only indication the student body has of who is running is the name on the ballot. Why should a man campaign against his brother, and possibly breed an ill feeling that would carry over into his last year in college? It is too much to ask of any candidate.

In the system of "candidates-at-large" from the student body or from the classes, the senatorial aspirants would be almost forced to present a platform. In every election there would be some gadflies who would have enough interest in the affairs of the college and, perhaps, in his own election, to come up, as a two-platform. He might even feel they would have to make a few campus speeches, so the students would at least get to know him slightly. All an election need would be one man to force the rest of the candidates to some definite stand and action. This, in turn, might awaken the college's notoriously apathetic students into some sort of serious consideration of campus affairs.

The platform would also take the election out of the realm of the popularity contest, for the men would be elected on their platform for legislation as put forth in their platforms and not on the sound of their voices or their athletic prowess.

Although these last proposed changes, (1) delegates from each class, and (2) Senators representing the entire school, are quite alike, there are several factors which throw the balance in favor of the class system. For many years, the lower classes have felt they had no part in their own student government. They had no representation. This had become especially obvious with the advent of delayed rushing. It is true that the Senators have the experience, but in every class there are men of ability who could make up for their lack of experience. This year's Freshmen Interfraternity Council has proved that.

The class system would also give the Senators a well-defined constituency to which they would be responsible. Thus, if the freshmen, for instance, felt that they were being unfairly treated, they could complain to their representative instead of running the gauntlet from back-passer to back-passer.

The representation would also be logically weighted in favor of the upper classes, especially the seniors. Amherst has one freshmen representative, two sophomores, three juniors and four seniors.

There you have it: Several systems for the amelioration of the student government situation we have here. The Tripod is certainly not asking the students to become emotionally excited and in revolution to "atomb the bastille" of Student Government. Rather, we are hoping that the students in the next few weeks will re-evaluate the old system in light of the facts and proposals put forth here and seriously consider and talk about the possibility of a change. Then, they must act before this May's election. It is hoped that the whole idea will not be dismissed with a single word like "impractical" followed by the easy return to the old ways.

"George, I've just decided to join you in giving up smoking for Lent!"

Speaking of Decay

The Field Air

By Henry Eckford, II

I once wrote an article against the Honor System, and now an article against the Field Air. I9.Outside the dining hall, which started off the college year with a proud sign on its face stating that students were on their honor to eat no sauce from the sauce bottles, unless they remembered to deposit a nickel in the box. At the time it was impossible to believe I was ever able to get newspapers conveniently, but that I had a skeptical eye on the Honor System part of the thing, simply because I had not had that fight around this campus, and the whole idea was very much in fun.

But now I'm disgusted at the whole world, patr Mon. Monday morning found the deck still is exis tence, sans newspapers, and on it hung a long and rotting sign of the times. Mr. James Sauvage, proprietor of the Field Air, in the tradition of the righteously colleague polemic against some unknown members of the college who had, in recent months, been too much devotees of papers. I'm sorry he put the stand up in the first place, if only because it gave us all a chance to have our rotten news as we are a group. Just plain rotten, I could understand a few papers missing, for such is our society's way of running.

What is this sign about the Field Air? It means that this whole polemical institution is, amid all the denials of decency, a place where we are supposed to be true to our principles, and, internally, the society, and externally, our society, an attempt to be the sign of the times, to be a perfect organization, and to have that fight around this campus, and the whole idea was very much in fun.

Eli French Players Present “Don Juan”
Under the joint sponsorship of the Alliance Francaise and of the Department of Romance Languages of Trinity College, the Yale French Players will present “Don Juan” of Moliere at the Bugbee School in West Hartford on Friday, at eight o'clock.

Most of the cast are native French. The play, instead of being presented in authentic seventeenth century costumes, will be given in late eighteenth and early nineteenth century garb. A short introduction to the play and to its author, Moliere, will be given by Professor George May of Yale University.

The audience will be welcomed by Miss Jeanne Low, president of the Alliance Francaise, and by Professor Louis Taylor.

Tickets may be purchased at the door for one dollar.

Holmdohl Leads Spanish Club Reorganization
The Spanish Club has announced its recent reorganization under the leadership of Dr. Harold Holmdohl.

The club is made up, for the most part, of students in Spanish Conversation, but membership is open to any one who has an interest in the Hispanic speech.

Last Friday a meeting was held at the home of Ken and Ted Barnett, 53. Group ball sessions, movies, and a game of charades, all in Spanish, highlighted the get-together. Adding to the flavor of the conversation were Mr. and Mrs. Barnett, who have lived in Cuba, Mr. and Mrs. Holmdohl, and Mrs. “Tom” Blackler, who has spent some time in Costa Rica. Another non-college backer of the group who was not in attendance was Juan Estevelles, a native of the island of Majorca in the Balearic Group.

“It’s the sensible test... the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke, on a day-after-day, mark-by-mark basis. No snap judgments! Once you’ve tried Camels for 30 days, you’ll know why...

Bentfield Signs With Detroit Team

As the varsity baseball season begins, so do the pregame activities. One of the busiest rooms in the stadium will be the one where the players are most likely to be found - the locker room. But although the players are busy, the coaches and managers are just as busy. They are preparing for the season, making final adjustments to the lineup, and trying to decide who will start each game. The coaches and managers are also making sure that the players are in good shape, both physically and mentally. The players are working hard to get into shape, and they are also preparing for the season. They are practicing their hitting, pitching, and fielding, and they are also working on their mental game. The season is just around the corner, and the players are ready to go. So be ready to see some great baseball this year!

Consider Nationals

Tau Alpha has been contacted by several national fraternities who are highly interested in locating a chapter on the Trinity Campus. The house is considering the merits of each group, and expects to start operations in the fall as a chapter of a national fraternity.

The TA Alumni Association has agreed to support the campus group, as evidenced by this letter sent out by the Alumni Secretary: "Thus summarily we are disposed... For the sake of the undergraduates, for the sake of the college, for the sake of the alumni, we must suspend this project until it has been brought to a happy ending. That ending will see Tau Alpha associated with one of the several national fraternities that are desirous of establishing chapters at Trinity."
