Hood Discovers Source Of Famous Keats Poem

Find Shows Basis of 'Ode on a Grecian Urn'

In an issue of the Tripod last March, Professor Thuman L. Hood had discovered the source of two lines in Keats' ode little known in Keats' 'Ode on a Grecian Urn.' He disclosed yesterday that he has, since that time, had unforseen good fortune in searching for other elements of the ode.

Some of the articles on the Hypocrite in Petronel's Satire of Greece, which is the industrious, but a little known, supposed author of the ode, and the little town, Professor Hood is now able to draw as sources Longson's publications, Daphnis and Chloe, and other works of the same era as Spence's Polybius, Tooke's 'Pamphlets,' and Spencer's "Foremost.

The most striking of the discoveries concerns the origin of the ode, the subject of the most obscure chapter of the subject of a sacrifice, including singing, piping, dancing, kissing, "mad pursuit" of "naughtiness," and the origin of the identity of deities and mortals. The most great in the case of a college publication this year is the identity of deities and mortals.

The ode is a source of the passage about the identity of deities and mortals.

Although an average turnout marked last year's Military Ball, it appears at this writing that the dance this Friday night will be something less than a success. This can be attributed to its proximity to the Soph Hop and the parties of the football season, the lack of funds among the students between the holidays, or various other factors. But whatever the reason, it is evident that the dance will not be a success financially, however it might evolve socially.

Not wishing to take the dance away from the ASROCV, we suggest that it be dropped as a "big" weekend to an occasion similar to the I.P.C. invitational. A smaller place than the Hartford Club could be obtained, possibly the Avon Country Club, where the dance would be a success financially with a smaller attendance.

It is certainly foolish for a few women to cause a problem we do not mean approval, but something else.

The Mead Lecture by DUNCAN STEPHENSON

"You ain’t seen nothing yet," quoted Dr. John Krout, Provost of Columbia University, and guest speaker at the College last week. The internationally famous lecturer, author, and historian gave the 1954 Mead Lecture which he titled "The Power of Our Colonial Heritage." The quote was a Washington bus driver's version of the saying "The British built the Great Wall of China." - The Heritages of the Past is the feet that Brings Knowledge of the Future --

The third and most important facet of our heritage discussed by Dr. Krout was that of wrestling with the problems of reconciling liberty with authority. Where does authority end? Where does personal liberty begin? The colonists tried to draw a line between the two, and seem to have done a pretty fine job. There was great thought put into this question. Part of the war was the question of the legality of the British taxes. Was it a violation of the rights of the individual or his country? More because he was impressed by the quality of the thought which lies in the traditions of colonial America, does not mean that he sobbed out the stories of the red, white and blue.

It is a paradox that our young "liberals" jump to the conclusion that anyone who admires our American heritage is a "fag-waver." Dr. Krout, we feel, is big enough a man to leave his personal politics out of his scholarship, whether he is liberal or not.

We do not wish to pass judgment on the relative value of patriotism, but we feel that there is a great value in a true appreciation of one's history. By appreciation, we do not mean approval, but something more like understanding, and the anti-McCarthy, anti-patriot action is an easy step of identification of one's self.

We have heard tell of a few individuals who consider patriotism prejudiced. No, it's not patriotism as being a "fag-waver." Dr. Krout, we feel, is big enough a man to leave his personal politics out of his scholarship, whether he is liberal or not. We do not wish to pass judgment on the relative value of patriotism, but we feel that there is a great value in a true appreciation of one's history. By appreciation, we do not mean approval, but something more like understanding, and the anti-McCarthy, anti-patriot action is an easy step of identification of one's self.

In closing, Dr. Krout mentioned that each individual will make the choice between collective and individualism. This "choice," warned Dr. Krout, "will be made in the gutter, just as much as in the galleries." What we have before us is the question, what sort of a gutter this country will be in the galleries. The practical politician has a vote in the gutter, the political philosopher has a vote in the galleries.

Kappa Psi Alumnus Aided in Renovishing House

The Kappa Psi Alumni Association of Connecticut is planning a week's work for a furniture drive. The newly organized Kappa Psi fraternity is to be located at 115 Vernon St. Under the leadership of local businessmen, the campaign has already secured several pieces of furniture and equipment including a refrigerator.

Group Lauded

Kappa Psi President, Burt Schneider, in announcing the drive for the fraternity said: "This is just one more example of the enthusiasm and cooperation shown by this group of men. It was primarily through their efforts that this project has become a success that it is.

Members Increase

It was also announced that Kappa Psi membership has tripled to better than fifteen men within the last ten days. In further elections Humberto Solano and Don McAlester were elected recording and corresponding secretares respectively.

The Review should make its presence felt during the freshman week when orientation takes place, and its auditors; perhaps a letter outlining the opportunities for literary expression should be sent by the members planning committee to the freshmen.

More than six years ago I was asked to offer some comments on a spring issue of the Review. It was called the spring issue but it appeared at some other time; publication was very sporadic in those days; the Review was in the green field of its life. In the hiatus of the War, I centered the method of soliciting and publishing material. It was certainly a highbrow method; in those days everything that found its way to the editor’s mail box finally found its way into the magazine. My article was entitled “It is too easy to know one another.” (I particularly enjoyed, by the way, the name of the complete styling of promptly announced that my article was in the handwriting of my correspondent.) I felt then that the Review did not belong to anything; it was not connected with any former or present enterprise. It was merely a College Senate appropriation. Very few of the contributors were personally acquainted. I learned later that the staff only got together significant business of the College; I think there is a literary set at Trinity.

In the current issue Thomas Lawton’s “Thoughts and Doings Concerning a Man” will undoubtedly strike the reader’s share of interest among readers. I gather that there are healthy differences of opinion about writing. The finished product carries the hallmark of tasteful discrimination. The

Eustis and Preissner Back Up Solid Offensive With Strong Rebounding

M.I.T. outscored the home team 51-44 in the second half and was still trailing by one at the half. The Hens and two free throws by Weber were squelched by two more push-shots by Barton. Bob Godfrey tipped home an errant set shot and moted later to take the lead. The Bantams with a pretty jump shot out of the pivot to give Trinity a 24-23 advantage. Ver-nam of the visitors followed Preisner’s jump with two whirling pivot shots for a 33-28 M.I.T. lead. Preisner required the advantage with two foul shots and the score was 32-31
at halftime.

Bantams Open Up
The second half opened in wip and crack fashion with the lead changing hands five times in the first six minutes. Trailing 41-42 the Bantams surged to the lead. Godfrey and Preissner powered their way for field goals as the rebound play was now ever-ending. Roberts then added a pace and drove through for a pretty layup and the Bantams led 48-45. A Bantam punt then took the ball, but Barton made it a six-point spread at the quarter mark.

Weber of the visitors opened the final session with a foul, but the defeating Bantams forced him to take opponents by outbounding them for a trip in. Bert Price added a layup after Verann did the same for M.I.T. Barton registered a layup after three shots for the home team. It was 50-do. Barton scored on a pivot one-hander and after Legends hit with two more push shots, Roberts added two free fouls. Verann tipped home a deuce, but Preissner found the range with his favorite jump shot.

M.I.T. Comes On
Brett and Haille opened the M.I.T.
lead with field goals and when Bill again hit from outside it was 67-65 for Trinity. Godfrey then came through in the clutch by putting in a buzzer. Weber added a foul, and with six seconds left Verann cut the lead to 69-68 with a layup. Barton added a foul after that and the first win of the year was sealed.

Fencers Prepare to Defend NE Title for 3rd Year; Close and Craig Lead Squashmen into Big Schedule

Kopp, Kramer Co-Capt. Squad

BY BILL MORRISON

Although only on an informal basis, fencing has been one of Trinity’s most successful winter sports. For the past two years the team has won the New England Championship. This year, with a squad of 20, another good season seems evident.

Epee Strong Forte

The strongest event will be the Epee led by co-captain Dick Kopp, runner-up to the New England Champion last year. Only one man is missing from the squad, that is the defending Epee champion, Max Heiken. The tally will be number two and Gerry Dorf will be number three. These three men are veterans of college competition and should garner at least six points a match. George Kramer, the other co-captain, will be number two with the fulfiller of this slot, Bob Frein, another junior, to be set at the number two spot. The final starting place is being fought for by a number of men.

The season will open at home with Harvard on the 8th of Jan. This will be one of the team’s hardest tests. Hopkins, Boston U., Yale, Stephens, and the championships round out the schedule.

Frosh Swimmers Strong in Practice

Coach Bob Slaughter has his frosh swimmers working hard and is very pleased with the team’s prospects for this year.

Well Balanced

The outstanding men that have shown so far are Alex Elie, Fred Boynton, Bob Hassett, and Jim Evans. The team seems to be well balanced as a whole.

The fresh engage Williston, Canterbury, Deerfield, Mt. Hermon, Westminster, Hopkins, and Westminster. The first meet is January 12.

Starting Lineup Undecided For Sat. Opener vs Navy

BY PHIL TRUXT

Under the direction of Coach Dan Josse the Trinity Squash team has been drilling hard and conscientiously for their season’s opener with powerful Navy this Saturday. The match is at Trinity.

Outlook Hazy

At present the outlook is rather vague, though not dim, with only two letterman returning from last year. Captain Wade Close and Phil Craig are the two men the team will be counting on most heavily. Both were stars of last year. Dick Jewett has been showing up very well so far and looks a sure shot for number three man.

Sophomore Brooks Harlow and Dave Hamilton are up from last year’s frosh club and both should be more than helpful to the success of the team. Bob Baker looks to be the best prospect for sixth man. Jim Twesbury, Chris Perry, and Nat Reed seem to be the leading candidates for the remaining starting spots.

Spirit High

Although the team is not potentially as strong as last year, the members are working harder and show signs of improving at the year progresses. The schedule as usual is going to offer a stern test to the Bantams with such teams as Navy, Pitt, Harvard, Williams, and Yale heading the opposition.

“IT’S FACT!” College smokers prefer Luckies to all other brands—and by a wide margin—according to the latest, greatest coast-to-coast college survey. The No. 1 reason: Luckies taste better. They taste better, first of all, because Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. “It’s Toasted”—the famous Lucky Strike process—keeps up Lucky’s light, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better. Now for the Drodle above, titled: Insect smoke ring blown by ept smoker. He’s ept, of course, because he smokes Luckies. Be ept yourself and enjoy the better-tasting cigarette ... Lucky Strike.

Dathmen Fail in 2nd Half; Jayvees Play Watkinson

By Jim Crystal

Completely outplayed by the opponent's second-half rally, Trinity was led by McGowan's contribution against an impec- tuous defense. Before the score of 83-51, the Trinity offense, as he scored 16 points in this game, repeatedly stole the ball and pressed on the offensive, giving the impression that he was consistently more interesting and facile than most I have seen before. He seems like a very interesting fellow indeed, and a very good writer as well. What more can be said about the skilful initiative of a form which does not reveal too much of the writer's own aesthetics or attitude to life? Unlike Elyea's "Thoughts and Deeds" does not require a key; nor does it require a Heywood Broun to defend it.

Chester Ringkeller's "Two and the Few" (I wonder why Mr. Ringkeller injected the quote from Gertrude Stein at the beginning) is a worthy continuation of a general theme begun in his "Prologue" in last year's Review. It is a bit of quick and neat work which is being done in this volume. The squad members are not too tall but have quite a bit of speed which will be used to our advantage.

The first game of the year for the School.
