Cuisine Auction Variety Show Signals Highlights of Campus Chest Drive

Twelve Models to Plug for Success of Annual Campaign

Young ladies from the Hartford Modeling Agency, a faculty shoe shining session, a cake sale starting Meth Pappas as auctioneer, and a Dixieland concert by Bob Halpin, will be among the featured events of this year’s Campus Chest Campaign.

Tomorrow, Thursday, December 1 in Campus Chest Drive, the Drive is being held on one day this year. Collections are to be made in each of the ten committees, and the Drive will culminate the snowballing effect of the 1955 Campaign.

The Drive will run similar to Milton Berle T.V. marathons for the benefit of the American Cancer Society.

A PLAN FOR THE DAY

Collections will be held at Noon tomorrow, and continue throughout the day and night, during which time each student will be apprised of a designated campaign and will contribute a dollar minimum contribution, which is to be divided among six charities.

GIRLS AT DINNER

At dinner most of the fraternities will have the opportunity to play host to a model who will be appearing at the variety show in the Field House later in the evening.

YARD HAY SHOW

"The variety show has everything to urge the students to give more than anything," exclaimed Campus Chest Chairman Ross Foster, of Alpha Delta Phi, while he recently briefed the Triad staff on the activities planned for the three-day chest collection. Bob Halpin, who has donated his own services and arranged for the various acts, will feature Dixieland music and two tape cassettes. Canter-

FRESHMAN ELECTIONS

The Freshman elections will begin next week with the primary ballot held on Tuesday, December 6th. The Senate announced that the Freshmen will vote between the hours of nine in the morning and four in the afternoon. The final ballot will be held on the following Tuesday, December 13th.

Dr. Robert Black Terms Civil War an "Unchristian Act"

"The U. S. Civil War was an unchristian act preceded by a lot of other unchristian acts, all of which could have been prevented by rational, level-headed Christian thinking before the war," explained Dr. Robert C. Black in a Triad interview today. His remarks were condemned directly by the chaplain with the chaplain’s talk he will deliver tomorrow at 1 p.m. on the subject: "The Christian and the American Civil War.” His speech is the third in the current series of monthly chapel convocations, entitled "The Christian in the Academic Community."

Dr. Black was appointed to the Trin-

y Faculty in 1936 as an instructor, and was promoted to assistant professor in 1938. He received his B.A. from Williams and his M.A. from the University of Denver and his doctorate from Columbia in 1941. After being (Continued on page 5)

Carnegie Hall Revisited

By BILL LEARNARD

On Friday, November 25th, an explosion rocked packed Carnegie Hall. The explosive was music, jazz, and the detonators—the "Tigertown Five," and "Eli's Chosen Few.

The second annual "College Jazz Goes to Carnegie Hall" was under way with the usual enthusiasm, for the heat was yet to come. Yale's entry led off with a 45 minute set illustrating the beginning and evolution of jazz. The "Chosen Five" were in the best traditions of musicianship and entertainment. Bob Sylvester of the New York Daily News, after hearing them in life, called them "the best college jazz combo and they are true to form at Carnegie.

Early in the program, the audience showed signs of making it quite an evening. Paper airplanes and confetti rained almost continuously during the performances. Beer cans began to appear on the railings of the three balconies, no one seemed to know where they came from, but there they were and there were some very happy listeners in the near behind them.

This was only the start, however, and the appearance on stage of Stan Rubin's "Tigertown Five" added to the gay confusion. Confetti in bright orange light filled nearly as loud as its music, the Tigers shoved of their waves. They were excellent but not quite up to Yale's efforts, I feel. Perhaps Mr. Rubin's attempt at comedy and showmanship detracted from the quality of the show.

After a short intermission Princeton returned for a set followed by the "Yalies" for another fifty.

By this time the "Hall" was alive with paper, screams of delight, and more paper. Old men danced in the aisles with girls forty years their junior and the place was packed when New Year's Day arrived.

Last on the program was the premiere New York performance of Rubin's 17 piece orchestra. Perhaps it was the atmosphere of New York itself nothing big had happened but this band topped all I've heard including Asktex, Yalies, and Kilties. The music was fine, while it was not new or startling, it has a vibrant quality I'd never found before. I must say I was no alone in my praise for the audience beamed with amusement and interest soon after they started.

Such an evening deserved a fitting and glorious end and we had one. The combined jazz groups joined the band to give a rendition of "The Saints" that sent a shiver of joy through the old college crowd—one that

Parents’ Association to Aid Admission Work

Some Parents Asked To Do Special Duty

"The Trinity College Parents’ Association, through its Advisory Committee on Admissions, is endeavoring upon a very important and ambitious program," announced Ralph S. Shaw, Chairman of the Parents’ Committee on Admissions. All parents will be asked to keep the Admissions Office informed of names and addresses of good students who, in their opinion, would be good Trinity material.

Some selected parents are being requested to work very closely with the office by becoming especially active in the field of recruiting good Trinity prospects and by participating in the work of the organized Alumni Inter­viewing Groups in those areas where there are more Trinity parents than alumni and where the alumni are in need of assistance.

Mr. Shaw stated that parents can be of great assistance in carrying out Trinity’s program which has purposes:

1. To seek out and interview young men who may be or are interested in Trinity, especially those who are unable to visit the college or who have not been able to talk to an admissions officer during his visit to the young man’s school. To give information about Trinity to interested students, their parents and teachers. To make more effective the process by which a candidate is identified by giving each such equal opportunity to be interviewed and to inquire into the opportunities presented at the college. To maintain continuing contact with schools which regularly send candidates to the college, as well as with schools from which the college would like candidates. Ultimately to insure that each incoming student is the best man who has applied for his place in the college.

If it succeeds in these purposes, Mr. Shaw declared, it will enable Trinity to compete with other colleges for the best students, and

Rare Book Received By College Library. Printed in 1595

The library is in receipt of a rare and valuable book, it was reported by librarian Donald B. Eggle.

Donated by A. C. Hrickett

The book, entitled "Colin Clouts Come Home Again," was donated by Alberton C. Hrickett, vice president of Connecticut General Life Insurance Company. Mr. Hrickett is a trust of the Workdson Library and a member of the College Library Association.

Spencer more than "poets" poet... "Colin Clouts Come Home Again," written by Edmund Spenser, is called one of his "sweat achievements" by Prof. Samuel F. Morse, poet and member of the English Department. "It is certainly fresh and delightful," he said. "For a good many modern readers, it is especially attractive because it is unconsumed by the elaborate and somewhat remote literary conventions of Spenser’s major works. In this book, he is very much more than the ‘poet’s poet.”

Printed in 1595

The copy of the work now in the library was printed in London in 1595. It is bound in full leather crimson parchment, with covers paneled in gold.

To Be Displayed

In commenting on the gift, Mr. Eggle said it was "easily the most exciting book event here above the news that the Watchman Library was coming to the campus. It is a valuable volume and adds a great deal of distinction to our collections. It will be housed in one of the cases in the Troubridge Room along with our other rare books so that many people may see and enjoy it.”

It will afford parents with an opportunity to shape Trinity’s future.

CIO Man Talks To Atheneum

Mr. Merrill Bishop, an International Representative of the U.S. CIO, spoke on the Guaranteed Annual Wage system applied to the auto industry. He said that these plans should be a GAW for four principal reasons. First, it would provide a psychological feeling of security if the workers were assured of their wages. This would result in their working better. Secondly, it would force management to plan its production more efficiently; third, it would give the worker a cushion in the event of unemployment, and fourth, it would force management to accept this plan, for the other (unemployment insurance). As for the plan of the GAW, Bishop spoke of one week’s pay during lay­offs for two weeks’ pay after, and also said that the funds could be set up by the money which would come from management and the workers. He said any firm that could give its workers a five-cent wage increase could have the plan. After his talk, a question period was opened, and during this time there was active and stimulating discussion. There were about 50 people in attendance.

Other activities of the debating club which will be especially active this year are as follows: This Thursday night, the debate will be held with Bridgewater College and on Monday there will be two army debates with New Haven state teachers. Also, a debate has been planned in the near future with Brown University.

Three Main Functions

The main functions of the important part of our student government set-up, as presented by Dean Clarke, are to control rushing in upperclassmen’s recus, to aid in social programming, and to help in the planning of the Gorgo contest and Stunt Night. He also said that the body has no disciplinary powers but it can, on occasion, refer disciplinary problems to the Deans.

The next meeting was tentatively scheduled to be held shortly after the Thanksgiving recess, at which time it was suggested that the election of officers take place.

Krieble Founds Company To Manufacture "Loctite"

BY JOHN WOODWARD

Professor Emeritus Vernon Krieble has come out with an invention which may have a profound influence upon the billion dollar industry of fasteners. This discovery is an amazing cement compound called Loctite. Professor Krieble started experimenting three years ago before he retired as head of the Chemistry Department.

Recently he formed an independent company known as American Sealants, devoted entirely to the production and sales of the finished results of his work.

Used on Metals and Glass

Loctite is a liquid chemical fastener, and contains no volatile substances and hardens with little shrinkage. It is used exclusively on metals, glass and porcelain, starting to set only a few hours after application and entirely set in 48 hours. Loctite presents temperature up to 350°, extreme cold, weather, oil, and all solvents. It is also entirely rust preventative.

Lock Washers Eliminated

The secret to the setting up process is the absence of air. Thus treated pieces can be exposed for long durations without any appreciable hardening effects. The main virtue of Loctite is that lock washers are eliminated and ordinary nuts may be used instead of costly lock nuts.

Invention Has Possibilities

Professor Krieble believes that his invention has many new possibilities for his invention. He pointed out that a recent article in THE WALL STREET JOURNAL stated that 90 billion fasteners would be manufactured in the United States in 1950. The invention is the first practical attempt to produce a satisfactory chemical fastener which could offer a challenge to this huge business.

Philosopher Relates Ideas of St. Thomas

A surprisingly large group of students, faculty members, and guests turned out last Tuesday evening to hear Dr. Morton Walton, Professor of Philosophy at St. Joseph's College, speak on the metaphysical aspect of St. Thomas. The talk was sponsored by the Philosophy Club.

Dr. Walton, a lively and energetic speaker, traced the underlying ideas behind this facet of Thomism, and stressed its importance in the role of education today.

He also pointed out the fundamental problems over which the various eyes of philosophy differ. He was careful to explain that his remarks were based on a Thomistic viewpoint, and therefore must be accepted or rejected from those premises.

The core of his talk was concerned with the problem of existence. Thomistic philosophy teaches us, he brought out, that the essence is in the potential, and the actual is in the being. If this idea is accepted, then we are confronted with the age-old problem of universals. Thomists would maintain that the universal essence is present within the object, but we can know this essence only through reason. Plato, on the other hand, holds that these essences exist apart from the actual object, which we know only through some perceptions. Plato too believes, that only through reason can we achieve the universal ideals or essences.

Dr. Walton also attacked, somewhat facetiously, our present educational system. He mentioned the practice of teaching teachers how to teach. "It is nonsense," he said, "for a man who knows nothing about mathematics to teach another man proficient in that subject how to teach mathematics."

Dr. Robert Black

(Continued from page 1) discharged from the army in 1945, with the rank of captain, he became an instructor in history and econo­mics at Renison Polytechnic Institute until coming to Trinity. At Trin­ity, Dr. Black is the resident counselor to Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity and originally from their Williams chapter.

A native of New York, Dr. Black is the author of "The Railroads of Georgia in the War Between the States," published in the journal of Southern History in 1948, and of several articles on mountainﻫping in TruBl and Timbrelle, the journal of the Colorado Mountain Club. Dr. Black's most recent book is "The Railroads of the Confederacy," pub­lished in 1912.

The series of lectures are given on the first Thursday of each month in the Chapel by a member of the faculty. Their aim is, according to the Rev. Mr. Allen F. Bray, to relate the perti­nent discipline of a faculty member to the Christian way of life.

Logan, along with Co-captains Zimmer­man and Scott, are droodleworthy Wall Shomers, hopes to lead the tankmen to an undefeated season, and later go on to better things in the New Eng­land.

Shawn shows how the all-star backfield is selected. By Charlie Sticka, football captain at Trinity, the team was selected to play in the East-West game at San Francisco.

The Spectator

By Ed Daley

Although the basketball season is closing in on most college campuses across the nation, the football season here at Trinity is far from over. Nor will it end (in conversation) for a long time! Naturally most of the talk has revolved around Charlie Sticka and the many honors that are being awarded this fine athlete. His election to the All-East football team is without a doubt, the greatest of these. For in attaining this unprecedented honor, Sticka was awarded the coveted fullback slot over one Pat Uebel, Ursuline, crashing Army fullback, displayed to this writer, in his final game last Saturday, one of the most memorable exhibitions of a truly fine football player. However, I do not think anyone will be better. He has combined the best in his two other positions. So, he is a perfect football player. The next year, he will be in college, and the team will lose a great asset.

This year is natural. However, hat-off to the sportswriters for honoring Charlie Sticka with the award that he so rightfully deserves.

Senior Fullback Honored At Dinner Monday Night

It was Charlie Sticka Night at Van Vleck Street last Monday evening. The coaching staff, sportswriters, Dean Clarke, alumni and his friends honored the rugged fullback at a surprise cocktail party and dinner.
