Polling Place Scheduled For Seabury Hall Lounge

Confronted with more nominal candidates than the glorious state of Texas witnessed last week, Trinity undergraduates will go to the polls tomorrow to elect twelve new representatives to the College Senate.

The polls will be open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., with voting taking place in Seabury Lounge. Each voter will select one of two candidates from the ten fraternities, Rowseell Club, and the on-campus neutrals. All students are qualified to vote and are urged to exercise this important privilege.

In an attempt to aid the students in selecting Senators of the highest possible caliber, the Tripod has undertaken a new method this year in presenting just the facts to the college body.

Questionnaires have been filled out by the nominees, who provided such information as activities participation, scholarship achievement, governmental experience, and qualification statements. The summaries of this survey appear in this special issue.

Qualifications statement: "Having held a position similar to the Senate while in high school and also being familiar with the workings of such a representative group, I think that I can qualify for the position of Senator. It is my contention that the Student Senate should work for the benefit of Trinity. I have no petty issues which have not concerned the students as a whole. As the representative body of the students, the Senate should work for their welfare. Influences of the social organizations on campus should have no place in the Senate, where the members should be working for a better Trinity College."

The following statement was recently issued after a Tri•p Executive Board meeting. The Board came to the decision that Trinity is such a liberal college in comparison to other colleges we are visited and whose students we have questioned, that it certainly seems the Senate can work with this campus, with the full support of our student-government-minded Dean of Students, if it so desires.

But added responsibility with little or no efficiency presents a real problem. This issue of the Tripod is an attempt by the Executive Board to present the accomplishments of the present Senate objectively and to stress the need for better activities, thus earned men to legislate for the student body.

This year the Senate has brought the National Intercollegiate Radio Foundation to campus, investigated thoroughly the bookstore and tightened undergraduate body. Dean Clarke asked that each Senator acknowledge his responsibilities.

As the minutes indicate, there was a tense spirit among Senators to form committees which never met and to wander from one project to another aimlessly. It is hoped that this spirit will be quelled, for it is tiring and obstructing comparatively little.

Greater efficiency, then, is one goal. Second, the Senators should make a serious attempt to developing a long-range concept of responsibilities and objectives, a reasonable, workable philosophy.

Such a program requires men with seriousness of purpose and sufficient background in College affairs. As the resumés will show, there are, fortunately, some such Senate candidates.

The student must recognize his responsibility to select the qualified man. "Shoiness," affiliation or participation in athletics are not necessarily prerequisites for a College Senator.
