Trinity Acquires Grant from National Defense Scholarship

In 1958, under the National Defense Education Act, Congress appropriated a large sum of money to American colleges and universities for the purpose of establishing a loan fund from which deserving undergraduate could draw in order to complete their education. The Federal Government has allotted Trinity the sum of $3,510.

A participating college or university is required to contribute to the total of not less than one-tenth of the amount contributed by Congress. The responsibility of administering the loan lies with the college.

Recipients of loans are selected by the college or university. The selection may involve a demonstration of the student's ability to borrow and return funds. The college or university is not required to select students with superior academic background who express a desire to teach to elementary or secondary school in a local school district. It is required to select students with superior academic background who express a desire to teach to elementary or secondary school in a local school district.

Trinity Russell Sage Singers Will Perform Saturday Evening

FORENSICS FINDS NATO Unity Proportional to Red Power

By John Henry

During the past decade, the U.S. has watched the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) move from a mere anti-Communist weapon in the 'cold war' to a genuine weapon in the 'warm war.'

The purpose of this time has also witnessed mounting disagreement over the ability of NATO to meet the Communist challenge, and it is precisely this paradox by showing that the United States and China, the two major powers of the region, are likely to be the major determination of the balance of power in the region. Indeed, the United States and China are likely to be the major factors in determining the balance of power in the region.

WRTC Starts Morning Program, Evening Faculty Discussions

This week WRTC-FM begins a new program feature: an early morning record show. "Heard from 7:00 to 8:30 a.m., the show offers popular music aimed toward the College audience. There will be no publicity off campus, since this is designed as a service for the student body. Interpersed throughout the show are College announcements, weather forecasts and frequent time-checks for the early risers.

Of special interest from the evening schedule this week, TRINITY LYCEUM (4:30, Thurs.) will feature Dr. Donald B. Kingley, Librarian, with a discussion of higher education at Berkeley, in France in World War II. The LYCEUM is a new series presenting faculty members speaking on topics of interest to them.

At the last WRTC-FM staff meeting a plan was adopted to poll the College to determine the number of FM sets and listeners on campus. The station management urges the resident students to cooperate when a representative requests information for the poll.

The Rev. Charles W. Wilding, '36, will return to the campus Thursday to speak to the student body at the service. Rev. Wilding was graduated from Trinity in 1938, and for the past four years has been pastor of the church and student body at the rectory of St. Matthew's Church, Providence, R.I.

Phi Beta Kappa ...

Dr. Agard received his undergraduate degree from Amherst and graduate degrees from Oxford, Cornell and Amherst. Dr. Agard will arrive at Trinity on Monday in time for the afternoon. The installation of the twenty undergraders into the chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, the eighth oldest in the country, will be done out side the classroom and the student's responsibility of the system will be defined as a service for the student body.

Biarritz, LYCEUM ~Ir. This week, TRINITY LYCEUM will present two new program features: an early morning record show from 7:00 to 8:30 a.m., and an evening faculty discussion on "The Role of Student Responsibility in Education," tomorrow evening at 7:30. Room 106 of the Chemistry Building will be the scene of the debate which, open to the public, will center around the student's responsibility concerning the test system and the honor system.

Ferwerda Finds NATO Unity Proportional To Red Power

BY JOHN HENRY

During the past decade, the U.S. has watched the North Atlantic Treaty Organization grow from a mere idea on paper to a formidable organization with a proven willingness to engage in military action. The present atmosphere has witnessed mounting Opposition over the ability of NATO to meet the Communist menace. The Eisenhower administration, not unexpectedly, feels that NATO is in the best shape in its history, while knowledgeable critics, including Truman's Secretary of State Dean Acheson, feel that the military commissaries in the Eastern European satellite states have little to fear from the Western alliance. If, the alliance is tittering and weakened by the clashing self-interests of various members.

The ferwerda brothers and sisters provided both the Korean and Indo-Chinese conflicts in the early 1956's, unity among NATO powers against Russia was probably at its apogee. Then, when the Russians experienced a steady decline that did not halt until late 1957 with the advent of the Sputniks and several other outer satellites.

Recent developments, Doctor Ferwerda points out, have bound the organization members more tightly. For example, as a result of the recent校订text hereup-1209

The European Common Market, inaugurated last New Year's Day, the government president declared, would also control the continental European partners of the alliance closer. The purpose of the Common Market, which includes the Benelux countries, West Germany, France, and Italy, is to bring the continental-economic policies and standards of living in closer agreement. Its adherents predict that the result of this free trade area will be an economic union of the participants.

Strengths and Weaknesses Cited

According to Dr. Ferwerda, the NATO community hit bottom in the period following the British and French invasion of the Suez Canal in 1956. The United States was miffed at its long-standing allies because it was the first time, in the other hand, were infuriated when the United States tried to extinguish this French enthusiasm for the self-defense of its allies. But now that both the British and French administrations in power at the time have been replaced, relations between the "Big Three" of NATO are much friendlier.

Britain and France, of course, are not friendly toward the idea of a common home for Europe. They have long been aware of their own weaknesses, and they have an idea of how they can expose them. The Russians, however, are still half-heartedly at the idea of a common home for Europe. Their idea of a common home for Europe is to create an economic union of the participants.

A second danger, Doctor Ferwerda declares, lies in France's long-standing vision for recognition as a great power. To further her this, France proposes a new treaty council setting up a group to control the foreign policy of the United Kingdom, and France which would supervise all the operations of the organization. Such a council would be composed of the most sensitive West Germans who maintain the largest NATO defense forces in Europe and already have little say in the administration of the alliance. The professor adds that France has actually not contributed her fair share to the defense of Europe.

Since virtually all French troops committed to NATO are fighting in Algeria, this element is of little use in the event of a surprise Communist attack on the continent.

While the strength of NATO, as measured by the unity of its members, has fluctuated considerably, its military strength, Dr. Ferwerda observed, has continually increased. Although the alliance probably will not suffer its loss of prestige as long as the United States, Great Britain, and France are fighting in Algeria, the Russians may have a few small swift forces equipped with up-to-date weapons. At ten years, NATO appears to be mature enough to cope with its chief responsibility—its involvement to any Communists who want to draw the Iron Curtain west.

The THE TRINITY TRIPOD

Curriculum Reforms
Cited by Hughes

Editor's Note: Last week's letter from two Trinity students concerning the "Trinity Education" problem was one of the many letters Dr. Hughes received concerning the curricular problems of the college. The following is a letter of concern and appeal to their "Trinity Education."

Some years ago I heard the president of a famous university in Europe say that he was glad to be old enough so that he probably would not have to live through another "renaissance" in education. His theory was that pressures for all sorts of impatience and revolution would erupt maybe once in a generation with volatile force and with devastating effects on the heritage of the past. He felt it was not to mention the curriculum itself. I do not wish to go into this debate and leave aside the obvious demands of world affairs for a change in the methods of higher education in America, it is enough to say that I am appalled at the thought of study a thorough examination. Every year new courses will be added to the curriculum. The student will have to accept what many of us find hard to believe—his need for requirements for a degree or for a "major." Most of our students will fail to look with the centred old-timers wanting to study classical languages or sciences that its spirit of invention would be to apply at this point for a "babbittical" degree and I hope to have a front seat during the debates.

During the last ten years I have not been aware of any conscious attempt on our part to carry out a systematic, steady, and vital growth by a process of galloping puritanism to the point where many of us find ourselves in the predicament of the Sokoloff Apprentice. Read pages 40 to 48 and 62 to 93 of our last catalogue and perhaps you will agree with me. A student at Trinity takes five courses a year and six at Yale. How is this different courses in order to make this possible? Our catalogue lists 219 semester courses and 61 units. Yet, we usually carry over from one course to the next. It figures out that we provide more than twice the number of semester courses as our catalogue shows. We have turned out a catalogue of 1950 which was made available. The difference between 5 and 16 or between 10 and 20 units is too vege tal to assent, a generous allowance to provide for the need of completion in the work of the several departments.

Quite properly, decisions about the nature of our curriculum at Trinity are made by major vote of the faculty of the College. The faculty is composed of established members of the Curriculum which consists of eleven members of the faculty including the capable chair men, George B. Cooper, Professor of History. I am but one member of the faculty and I am not sure that the majority of the faculty is made aware of this. All of the members of the faculty are aware of this. In the Spring semester, the faculty has a few hours and a few details will have to be worked out before we can arrive at any conclusions. I am, nevertheless, anxious to participate in the discussion on this topic and to present my case;

Panel To Discuss
Cut, Honor Systems

The Education Club will sponsor a Panel Discussion on "The Role of Student Responsibility in Education" tomorrow evening at 7:30.

Room 165 of the Chemistry Building will be the scene of the debate which, open to the public, will center around the student's responsibility concerning the cut system and the honor system.

Nathanial Hathaway, Senior, will moderate the discussion. The Panel members include Dr. William Zeller, Psychiatrist, Hartford Institute of Living; Dr. Harold L. Stewart, Professor of Mathematics; Dr. Juan E. Torellias, Instructor in Education; and Phillip Jacklin, Trinity's student representative.

Sections I, Honesty in Education

1. Do you favor the institution of an honor system at Trinity College?
2. Do you favor the adoption of the Senate proposed honor code?

The Honor System is defined as the system under which any written exercise in the classroom, performed under faculty surveillance, is to be judged solely on the basis of the student's individual effort; the faculty to be done outside the classroom is conducted without faculty surveillance, each student pledging himself not to give aid without due acknowledgment; each student being also honor bound to report to the proper authorities any apparent violation of the system.

Section II. While the Honor System does not forbid a student to leave an examination room, it requires that he not to leave until examination room is conducted without faculty surveillance, each student pledging himself not to give aid without due acknowledgment, each student being also honor bound to report to the proper authorities any apparent violation of the system

Section III. The Education Club will sponsor a Panel Discussion on "The Education Club will sponsor a Panel Discussion on "The Role of Student Responsibility in Education" tomorrow evening at 7:30."

Section IV. The Medusa shall convene secretly for its final action and render a recommendation to the Committee on Administration (the Dean of Students) a just and proper penalty for each violation.

Section V. Enactment of this Code

Section I. This code shall go into effect at the beginning of the first semester, following its acceptance by the College.

Frosh End Season With Wesleyan Win

"Our sweetest victory." That is the way Coach Bob Schulte labeled the 70-52 victory his frosh basketball squad pulled on the highly touted Wesleyan fresh Wednesday.

The story of the high scoring first half (49 points) was the inability of Wesleyan to hold Schulte's team. At the end of the period Wesleyan Towns had an 8-point lead while John Norman had run up 21 for Trinity. Three points separated the teams.

However, both men had three fouls at intermediate. Towns picked up his fourth early in the second period. Just when the Bantams had developed an apparent seven-point spread, with three minutes remaining, the Cardinals substituted an active new team, including Towns.

The hot-shooting and effective full court defense of Wesleyan Union brought the season's record up to four wins and five losses. The Towns have won only one game of the intercollegiate season, but Bob Adams (see picture in this edition) now has a new team.

Frosh Bantam Matt Levine

The era of the advanced Trinity basketball fan is inevitable. One might wonder that it has eluded us until the final round is near, since at such a moment there is life, for this 1959-60 season has brought to the depth of interest in basketball, as it has to which has been neglected for the past three seasons.

They've done this for themselves, and their own pride, however. You, the student body are to be thanked, for student support is far from Dave Traut, who recently signed for the adoring Bantams, nonion had had from the source of this success. If the team had worked for good crowds to frequent the Field House before starting their winning ways, they would probably be waiting 'til tomorrow.

After winning only three of its first eight games during Christmas semester competition, the local five was hit hard during the mid-year break. Losing its two high scorers, the team faced the second half of its schedule with well-founded apprehension.

Sarcastic remarks, typical of the Trinity student who sits around complaining about the score and anything no matter like the weather, suggested the thread of darkness. From this pile of athletic debris, which had been conceived to rule by means and measures, emerged the flashes which has been the colorful ball club. Jay McWilliams boys produced a new desire and determination which was soon as clearly seen as a linesman recently, a feat which had not been equaled around here since the opening weeks of the 1955-56 season.

The first five games of that campaign were won, but after their victory on the night of Friday, January 5th, Trinity's plunck began. The varsity's final record stood at 3-8, a total of 22 games.

Between that fatal day and this year's date of revolution, the record is found to be a decided 12-4.

Since the missing of Captain Ed Anderson's running mates, Trinity has outdistanced all opponents, passed the roundabout as many as 15 times before shooting (without losing it in the past) and shot from the field at a 60% clip (this is more than acceptable).

The Coast Guard and Union, witnessed at least four men scoring in double figures. Previous to their loss at the hands of the Bantams, Union had been held to a disastrous 14-42. Winning by twenty points or more is a rare event in Trinity's advancement.

It's far too late now to make up for the games you didn't see. When the squad wasn't playing well, there was somewhat of an excuse. But the fact that there were more wins at the Bantams guile than there's, is hardly why one might call a display of enthusiasm.

Let's just hope that the newly found spirit among Trinity basketball players filters into this competitive student body of ours.

POVERTY CAN BE FUN

It is no disgrace to be poor. It is an error, but it is no disgrace. Since your purse is empty, don't skulk and broker and hide your head in shame. Stand tall. Admit your poverty. Admit it freely and frankly and all of good things will happen to you. Take, for instance, the case of Blossom Sigelsoe.

Here is an interesting combination of woman's world, that is. Blossom's dealing, smart was as a whip and round as a drum, and scarcely a day went by when she didn't get invited to a party weekly. It was typical of men's schools. But Blossom never accepted. She didn't have the ruffle hair; she didn't have the clothe decorated in a formal weekend, while her choice didn't. One week she missed, went flocking, Blossom at dawn, saved from utter despair only by her park of Minerals, for even an exchange as big as Blossom can afford the joys of Minerals—joy far beyond their pale price: rich, yellow toilets, lovingly cured and carefully packed; a new improved filter that works like a charm. Cressins herself could not buy a better cigarette!

However, Blossom's money didn't buy her a cigarette—among whose number I am paid to count oneself—would not claim that Minerals can entirely replace love and romance, and Blossom grew steadily more.

Then one day came a phone call (from an intelligent scholastic named Tom O'Beath at a nearby college. "Cherish," he said, "I want to come down next week for the better wash, and I would like an answer for an answer.

"No," said Blossom.

"French girl," said Tom gently, "I know why you refuse me. It is because you are poor, isn't it?"

"Yes," said Blossom.

"I will send you a ranch brooch," said Tom. "Also a small album in case you get hungry on the train.

"But I have nothing to wear," said Blossom.

Tom replied, "I will send you a TrueCrash cotton, Friskies, of course, two glasses of wine, three dabs of velvet, four-foils of soup, five foils of napkin and a cartridge in a pair to go.

"That is most kind," said Blossom, "but I fear I cannot do so to enjoy myself while back home my poor lame brother Tiny Tim lies sick.

"Send me to Mayo Brothers and put it on my tab," said Tom.

"You are terribly decent," said Blossom, "but I cannot come to you, as all the other girls at the party will be from rich, distinguished families.

"I love you, Tiny Zion," said Tom.

"Tiny Tim lives alone in a ranch brooch, but Blossom, dropping grateful tears into the Deuce's reticule.

"Yes, run and child," said the Dean, a smiling brooch her wise and kindly old eyes. "And ask him has he got an older kithder.

Yearlings Down Williston
To Finish Squash Season

Upon defeating Williston Academy 6-1 in the last match of the season, the freshman squash team finished with a 4-3 record.

The season was initiated surprisingly, with a 7-2 victory over Wesleyan. In the second match on January 14th, the Freshmen gained a second win over Williston.

Following the mid-year break, Bay Path's coach was lashed by Anbret, 7-4. On the heels of this disaster, another match took place, this time at the hands of a polished Choate team. The score read 6-4.

In the next match played at home, the fresh downs Lenox 4-4. A second match against Wesleyan was lost before the Williston trials.

MOPY DICK

Call me Fishmeal. Some months ago—don't trouble yourself about how many—I signed on as a deck hand aboard the charter boat Perdoo, a most melancholy craft, sailing out of Bay Shore, Long Island.

There are certain queer times in this patchwork quilt we call life when a man discerns the approach of some calamitous event; such a time came to me of a hot Saturday morning, as we were laying the Schafer boat for the day's fishing aboard. My uneasiness centered about Captain Abah, asleep in his cabin since Thursday night—he swore he had contracted sleeping sickness in a battle with Mopy Dick, the Lazy Whale, and I found myself beset by the fear Abah would attempt vengeance.

The natural excellence of our fishing party, petulant from the city of the Malnotus, mounted even higher when they espied the Schafer all asea in ice and sunlight. "Ah!" cried one, "it is evident you know what is heard in the best of circles!" "Ay, sir," said Moonbuck, our first mate, "Schafer all around!"

Suddenly a sleepy-eyed Captain Abah was in our midst.

"Blood and thunder," he yawned, "today I wreak my hate upon Mopy Dick. Full speed ahead for the open seas!"

Only Moonbuck made bold to ease the man. "Drink this Schafer, my captain, and think on the wisdom of your move. Never the smooth round taste—never sharp, never flat!"

"I thirst only for revenge," he murmured dozily, but he took the proffered beer and stumbled slowly to his cabin. Perhaps in his harrassment he annihilated Mopy Dick by vanquished Schafer Dick was vanquished by him. I never knew, but I think it all had great, alldispersed meaning. The Perdoo and Abah and Mopy Dick and the Schafer were symbolic of something superior—something as mysterious and enduring as the rise and fall of the sea.
Military Ball Will Be Held At Avon Club

The Military Ball serves as a position of greater importance this year with the demise of the L.F.C. dance usually held in the early spring. On Saturday March 14, the Avon Country Club will double under the dancing feet of Trinity's cadets and civilian escorts led by the Symphony orchestra.

Traditionally one of the most enjoyable dances on the college calendar this event has the high recommendation of a low-cost ($4.00) ticket. A woman's college singing group and drawing for a dessert of a bottle of champagne will highlight the mid-season entertainment. The female aigupe represents the first woman's college ensemble to appear at a college dance in the four years of this writer's experience and it is hoped that they prove to be a tradition-setting value.

Friday night may open its doors to the dancing throng and at least one House expects to have guests representing and larger portion of the student body. Couples, paired during the course of the evening, will be given tickets at the ROTC headquarters.

English: DRIVE-IN MOVIE ON A RAINY NIGHT

Thinklink translation: This drive-in's main feature: pictures matched to the weather. In January, it's a feature of Film in July, Hot Spill. When it pours, of course, the program is all wet: Singing in the Rain, Hatful of Rain and Rain-tree County. On such nights, the only (Thinklink) word for this place is daimphtheater? Better turn off the stereo and indokust your eyes, light up a Lucky, and enjoy the honest taste of fine tobacco.

Then it's Always Fair Weather.
