Mr. C.'s letter:

To the Editor:

I was interested in your letter regarding Mr. Us's idea of the future of the student body. We have recently received two letters from the college, one from the department of physics and the other from the business department.

The physics department has suggested that the student body be divided into four groups, each group to be responsible for a different task. The business department has suggested that the student body be divided into six groups, each group to be responsible for a different task.

I believe that the student body should be divided into four groups, each group to be responsible for a different task.

CHANGING TIMES?

Last Thursday's film-lecture on the 1965 American revolution provided the student body with an enlightening and entertaining hour and a half. One of the major themes for the film was the importance of the strike. The strike was seen as a way to achieve the goals of the American revolution.

Despite our obvious pleasure at this first glimpse of hope on the fraternity horizon, we are full of trepidations as to the new role of the fraternity. What role is the fraternity expected to play in fostering this movement of the fraternity? It is our opinion that the role of the fraternity, if it is to play a determining role in this evolution, but to now, it has failed to carry the ball. We are not advocating that the fraternity move this birth upon the fraternities. Rather, we believe it should stimulate re-appraisal, and lead any action by the fraternities when and if this glimmer of progress becomes more brilliant.

The New England Circuit

The Phi Alpha Psi Fraternity at W Wesleyan has initiated a new type of reading course entitled "House Reading Course." This differs from Trinity's Reading Course in that a group of students (from Phi Alpha Psi) can receive credit for a course read in the house. The group will meet five times this semester with a member of the Phi Alpha Psi faculty for two hour class discussions. In addition, it plans student-led discussions and meetings with guest speakers. Perhaps the most novel aspect of the course is that no examinations or papers will be required. It is planned that each student will grade himself in the course.

Chapel Credits

The Trustees of Mount Holyoke College voted recently to abolish required chapel attendance. The reason given was that compulsory worship was not aiding the "ethical and spiritual growth of the students." In other words, the students want to engage in "the spiritual search," but that they should be given "freedom of choice as to the ways to pursue that search."

Fraternity Localities

The beta fraternity of Wesleyan will belong to a national organization with discriminatory requirements. This fraternity has definitely suspended its ties with that organization. Sigma Nu thus becomes the fourth Wesleyan fraternity to localize in recent years.

Dr. Frank Drake of the National Radioastronomy Observatory has also considered the possibilities of communication with other beings. The Morris-Corson article implied that it was possible to arrange a series of calculations on the chances of successful communication. Dr. Drake found that "if we were to assume that our civilization is not unique, we could find the probability of another civilization existing in the solar system and having a culture similar to our own."

Obviously the scientific and philosophical results of the discovery of other-worldly intelligent life would be tremendous. And while the probability of the existence of a highly developed civilization is remote, the chances are small but measurable. Thus Project Orma was inaugurated.

Loyalty Oath Repeal Still Seen Possible

In the light of Senator John Kennedy's recent announcement that he intends to introduce an amendment to the National Defense Education Act, it is significant that the Harvard Crimson (in a pamphlet called "Worse than Futility") on the much-debated N.D.E.A. states that the act can be amended "if students all over the country—members of a generation conditioned "to believe in" policies—will pick up their pens and write some letters to Washington."

Senator Kennedy's proposed amendment would retain the Loyalty Oath itself, which is not much stronger than the Pledge of Allegiance and demands only a promise to "support and defend the Constitution and laws of the United States against all its enemies, foreign and domestic," but would eliminate the affidavit stating that the student does not believe in the violent overthrow of the government and is not a member of an organization which advocates its illegal or violent overthrow.

The Harvard Student Council has joined the Crimson in listing reasons of a practical and principle why students themselves should take an active part in the fight for repeal of the affidavit requirement, both by writing letters to Congress—and as Trinity's Alumni Society will do next—publicly discussing the issue.

In the first place, when Senator Kennedy introduced, with Senator Joseph Clark of Pennsylvania, a similar amendment last year, one of the main reasons for the amendment's defeat and the retention of the affidavit was the almost complete lack of student interest. Senator Russell of Georgia was credited with a very stirring point when he said, "I have not received a single letter from a single student in my state."

In addition to this all-important point, there are reasons based on principle for the students themselves to support the anti-affidavit legislation. First, the student as a group seem to have been singled out as "suspicious" because of the implications that a loyalty oath and affidavit carry with them. By including these provisions, which make the student assume their absolute, unwavering, and eternal devotion to their country, as a requirement for individual student loans, Congress has evidently expressed "the suspicion and fear in which the academic establishment is held by a significant portion of the community." To quote the Harvard Student Council: But, in Senator Kennedy's words, "If we are to encourage young and restless minds to move into the far frontiers of knowledge . . . we must resist now any attempt to guide our students into a preconceived mold."
Sigma Nu, St. A's Defending 1959 Basketball, Squash Titles
Crow Nips DPhi for Volleyball Title, 10-15, 15-13, 15-11

By ANDY MILLER
(Ed. Note: A preview of the intramural basketball season)

With the volleyball tournament now complete, Basketball and Squash will move into the intramural spotlight for the next few months. Sigma Nu and Mt. Anthony's will try to defend their respective championships against a host of formidable challengers.

American defending champions in Basketball Sigma Nu look the court yesterday against a vastly improved Delta Phi club. Sigma Nu, although short on reserves, nonetheless fields a strong contingent captained by Al Perlman, last year's MVP in the finals against Crow. Sharpshooter Bill Frease and Pete Tansir return as starters along with the center from last year's Bantam aggregation, Pete Mochan. Lonnie Day, Dale Westhington and Bill Zimmer round out the champion squad, which has had little practice to date.

DPhi Deep
They may face trouble with a tough Delta Phi squad. Matt Levine, Tom Watt and Ed Clindas's return as starters, along with Don Paps, former of the Bantams. Dick Anderson, Dave Rutherford, Dick Boardman, George Willi, and Paul Demandt all provide added strength for DPhi.

Pi Upsilon and DKE seem ready to give the leaders a fight. Carvergent senior Clark and Curt Schrier lead a club which finished second to Crow last year in the National League, but PiU is faced with a personnel problem in replacing graduation losses. DKE must also find a supporting cast for top players Chris Gibson, Bob Ramsey and Sage Swanson will help, but DKE must also look for players. The freshman BROTIC crew could be a surprise. Although injuries to two key men will hurt, BROTIC should turn up with a fairly good company.

Brevard will show some promise in the season progress. Lacking a really outstanding player, they must work themselves into a team. Al Zakarian, Gary Mandriola, George Reaves, and Norm Tsuni are likely starters.

St. A's also must look towards improvement. Slated for duty at present are Bob Woodard, Dick Werner, and Bill DeCoffley.

Crow Strong Again
Turning now to the National League, defender Alpha Chi Rho looks strong again. Center Kerry Fitzpatrick (19 points in the championship Sigma Nu lost last year) is the big man on a team that returns practically intact with Dale Blaatman, Bill Ables (MVP two years ago), and Dave Arle all likely starters. In addition, Crow has picked up Dana Chaves and Skip Sharpe from the Freshman team along with speaker Wayne Mehltriner.

Theta Xi, now moved into another league, hopes to knock down Crow from the top spot. Pete Johnson and Jack Whartsh in the back-court team up with Mac Costley, Andy Cantor, Ken Greenwald, and Jon Keroes up front.

AD Big Challenger
Alpha Delta Phi is in a much better club than their third place finish in the last year. George Lynch, Al Cagle, Rodell Anderson were on the team that lost to PiU in a playoff, but much has been added for All overall strength. Doug Anderson, Jon Whitters, Joel Robert, Frank Sun, and Jeff Steele are Sophomores who could put AD into the finals.

Pi Kappa Psi tied for fourth a year ago will rely on John Bering and Les Schoenfeld. Bob Eisman, Alan Woodbury, Bill Handler, and Mike Niven supply added power.

Pi Kappa Alpha will have trouble containing the taller teams but should put up a good fight. Frank Swanson will be aided by teammates Rug Krzyzniozki and Ed Wagner, but PiKA must look for more depth.

Fresh Team Questionable
The three other Freshman teams are question marks, but any and all could be surprising. The Bantams have quite a bit of height, and the NEDs and Zarris squad squads, but they need coordination in the game to come.

Trinity bounced back from a humiliating defeat at Williams to soundly defeat the Jumbos of Wesleyan; Triones Tufts, 79-65

Trinity awaits Wesleyan; Triones Tufts, 79-65

In the last game before the two week break, neither the Bantams nor the Ephsmen could do much right, but the Williams squad made fewer mistakes late in the game, and overtook Trinity to win 55-51. Captain Barry Royden, John Norman and Doug Tangall proved to be the least inept in the generally sloppy ballgame, each managing to tally 14 points.

It was an entirely different story at Tufts as the Bantams apparently used the two week layoff to recover their basketball skills. Led by the outside shooting of John O'Leary, the Jumbos managed to stay within striking distance of Trinity for the first half, but the Bantams left the floor at the break with a 36-22 lead.

The locals caught fire early in the second half, and easily outdistanced their opponents. John Norman, who was the high man for the evening with 19 points and Barry Royden hit consistently from the outside, and when they did miss, Ken Lyons and Doug Tangall were in position to drop in the rebound.

Lynn's 18, and Royden and Tangall with 15, followed Norman in the scoring parade.

The game was slowed considerably, especially in its closing stages, by an exorbitant number of personal fouls. Tempers flared at times, and to keep the game under control, the officials took special pains to look for possible offenders. A total of 58 personal fouls were called, 23 against the Jumbos who ended the game with fear of their players disqualified via the personal foul route.

Trinity continues the season with two home games this week. Last night, a University of Rochester team, was entertained at the Field House. On Saturday, the Cardinals will meet Connecticut, and after a hard-fought season last year's two-time competitors of the Bantams are back in uniform, in addition to newcomer John Duband, who has been a leading scorer this campaign.

Don Skinner, Dave Holf, and Lhammar Frankier are the returning lettermen. The Cardinals have lost several by small margins, and have the experience required to be a winning ball club. Three of the five starters from last year's two-time rivals of the Bantams are back in uniform, in addition to newcomer John Duband, who has been a leading scorer this campaign.

Don Mills, a standout thus far this season, met defeat for the first time. On Friday, the varsity whipped Wesleyan, 7-2, for their first victory of the season. The Bantams record now stands at 1-3, the other losses coming at the hands of Amherst and Williams.

cause the mathematician thinking prevalent may parallele its chaste realism. His closing verb, "Modern Jazz is really nothing but a new outlook on the 18th century Baroque School" may be disputed; although the author briefly shows the debt Brubeck owes to this form, more elaboration upon his last sentence would have been welcome.

Mike Lieber's description of the attractions and types of folk music is well-written and informative. The article stresses the universality of the "creative imagination" behind folk songs, as contrasted with the box office centered "literary comedy" of Broadway and Hollywood. The judgments which the author offers are clearly stated and illustrated; the success of The Sound Of Music, a soppy spectacle based on the life of a family of itinerant folk singers, backs up his opinion that the public is becoming increasingly interested in folk music.

Poetry Contributions Good

Librarian Editor Paul Brigett's Strawberry Love, a little-known recitation of a departed love, is the best of a very good collection of poetry. The Review also contains his striking portrayal of the nature cycle—Autumn, I Forgot When. Steven Crockett paints three-outstanding scenes—of lost youth, the progress of a piece of dust, and a tranquil bird—John Avilano's, but what care he for earthly joys is an excellent exhortation to "live a life-sized life."

Louis Roma adds another fine poem of a trinity love—T.S. Jennings and Thomas Swift's Variations celebrate, as Brigger, the regeneration process.

Lee Kachleian has contributed two fine pastels, and George Rand an ominous precursor of Rebellion. At a summary account of a woman's desire by Timothy Baum and William de Colville's vivid picture of a rainstorm conclude the identifiable participants in The Review's fall production (One K.I.L.L. celebrates his return to social acceptance in the magazine's final offering—Ode To A Rainstreet). The reason why a tree by an author unconnected with Trinity (Charles Edward Eaton's On Finding That The Poem Belongs To Others), however mercurial, has been included is unclear, since The Review is produced and published solely by the student body.

Editors Kachleian, Brigger, Crockett, and Renata, along with new faculty advisor Minot, are to be commended for bringing The Review back from the hush of the Fall, the midterms, and the Pretentious.

Trinity Gets $3500 Esoo Company Award

Esoo Company, manufacturer of Esoo Standard Oil, presented the recipient of a great form. The Esoo Standard Oil Company's Education Foundation of Connecticut Award was almost $1 million in the form of a check to Trinity. This is one of the many contributions that the Institute is receiving this year.
